

ATTACK ON U. S. CONSUL PROTESTED

SLAYERS OF SIX OFFICERS STILL AT LARGE

AIRPLANES, RADIO ASSIST SEARCH FOR VICIOUS BROTHERS

Thousands Help In Following Clues; Family Quizzed

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 4.—Southwestern Missouri wore the grim aspect of a seething war sector today as thousands of armed men combed the countryside in a gigantic hunt for three bad men, the Young brothers, wanted for the barbaric massacre of six peace officers.

But, despite the mobilization of all the state's man-searching forces and the use of every method of modern science, to track the killers down, it appeared that the brothers, Harry, Jennings and Paul, had cunningly eluded their pursuers.

Innumerable tips regarding the fugitives' whereabouts flooded police and sheriff's headquarters and kept some 10,000 official and unofficial hunters occupied in running them down. But, none of the reports produced a concrete clue to the trail of the wanton desperadoes.

Still, there were indications that the Young brothers, whose careers have rivalled the depredations of Jesse James and the notorious Quantrill gang of Civil War days, may still be in Missouri and the hopes of capturing them alive incited the man-hunters to renewed efforts.

Meanwhile, a community, shocked by the bloody outrage, prepared to bury the six victims, Sheriff Marcel Hendrix and five other officers who were moved down by rifle, shotgun and machine gun fire when they went to a farmhouse six miles from here to arrest Harry Young on a two-year-old murder charge.

Although the monster hunt centered in this Ozark Mountain region made famous by the exploits of James and the Quantrills, clues to the trail of the fleeing killers appeared in other sections and were followed relentlessly.

From Streetman, Tex., came a report that two men had wrecked and abandoned an automobile and had fled afoot in the direction of Huston. In the abandoned car, it was reported, was discovered a shotgun said to resemble the weapon carried by Sheriff Hendrix when he was murdered. Officials here, however, denied having received telegraphic identification of the shotgun.

HUSBAND HELD FOR SLAYING OTHER MAN

SELINGROVE, Pa., Jan. 4.—Martin Snyder, 26, today was held for the fatal stabbing of Harry A. Wagner, 56, a result of the ardent wooing of Snyder's vivacious, 18-year-old wife, Faye, by Wagner, a wealthy merchant of McClure, near here.

Snyder was captured yesterday after an all night search which ensued when the jealous husband first accused and then fought with the middle-aged suitor for his wife's favors.

The girl-wife, with sobs shaking her frail body, told of the fight in the dimly lighted home of Hurley Wagner, her father, which resulted in Harry Wagner's death.

A rendezvous with Wagner was the "touch-off" to the fatal struggle, she said. Wagner arrived at the Snyder home before the younger husband had left—because Snyder stayed later than usual, "to burn my only dress shoes to make sure I could not go out."

LILY DAMITA MUST POSTPONE ROMANCE

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 4.—This is leap year, but Cupid must wait in the romance between Sidney A. Smith, New York broker, and Lily Damita, French screen star.

Returning from a visit in Santa Barbara, Cal., Miss Damita and Smith today evaded questions about their reported engagement to marry.

"Mr. Smith is going back to New York soon, and absence makes the heart grow fonder," Miss Damita said. "I naturally expect to marry some day but not now. My career keeps me in Hollywood. Mr. Smith? That's hard to tell. We're very good friends. Maybe so later."

BUDGET ESTIMATES OF HOOVER SLASHED BY HOUSE MAJORITY

Thirteen Millions Are Cut From Deficiency Bill Monday

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—In the first major supply bill of this session reported to the house today, the Democratic majority slashed President Hoover's budget estimates $13,443,900.

It was the urgent deficiency bill, carrying $125,886,262, and providing appropriations for the current fiscal year of $50,000,000 for federal-state roads construction, and $46,872,975 for the veterans' administration, among lesser items. The federal public building program deficiency estimate was cut $3,000,000 to $17,000,000.

An item of $1,500,000 recommended by the appropriations committee makes up a deficit in the post office department occasioned by the shorter work week for railway mail clerks.

Among the major cuts, the committee sliced $10,000,000 from the $60,000,000 asked by the budget bureau for federal aid to the states' road construction. The committee report explained that the present financial situation made it probable some states could not meet their share of the cost in order to get the federal appropriation.

The committee cut $150,000 from the estimated $550,000 asked to furnish the new house office building. The committee felt that under existing conditions suitable furniture could be got for less than estimated.

Eliminating $11,900 from the million and a half dollars estimated for payment of court of claims judgments, the committee took occasion to criticize Gen. A. C. Dalton, Ret., former president of the shipping board's emergency fleet corporation. The item was for back retirement pay for Dalton.

On this job Dalton received $18,000 a year. The report stated he had testified he was not receiving retirement pay while on the fleet corporation payroll, and the subcommittee believed from his statement there was no intention on his part to ask for it.

Dalton, nevertheless, filed suit for back retirement pay and got judgment, the report revealed.

Protest Strike Meets Resistance; Will Not Try Mahatma

LONDON, Jan. 4.—For his own protection, Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, Indian nationalist leader now in jail for the fourth time in his career as champion of Indian freedom, will probably be denied trial by the British authorities.

International News Service was informed by reliable government authority that all possible steps will be taken to prevent his trial, as so many charges could be brought against him that it might be necessary to execute him if he were convicted.

The government, it was pointed out, desires at all costs to spare the Mahatma's life, so efforts will be made merely to banish him to some remote spot where continuance of his campaign against British rule would be impossible.

BOMBAY, Jan. 4.—A quick succession of events, begun with the arrest and jailing of Mahatma Gandhi, today threw India into another definite break with Great Britain over the age-old question of her independence.

As the cell doors of "Gandhi's room" in the Yeravda jail at Poona closed behind the aged leader of India's fight for political freedom, his followers declared a hartel, or general strike, effective immediately throughout Bombay and soon to be followed throughout the country.

A few hours later the government struck again, issuing an emergency ordinance empowering the Bombay and Bengal governments to "control" and arrest if necessary all persons suspected of "acting in a manner prejudicial to public safety and peace and furthering such prejudicial movements."

In other provinces ordinances were effected similarly curbing almost every activity of nationalists. These included the "unlawful instigation" ordinance, similar to the frontier ordinance, and the "unlawful association" ordinance, empowering the rajah to declare unlawful any association or political group throughout India.

A molestation and boycott ordinance effected makes peaceful picketing an offense.

All of the laws were ordered in an attempt to crush at the start a campaign of civil disobedience begun immediately after Gandhi's incarceration and at his command. The program outlined for the nationalists is virtually the same as that pursued following the imprisonment of Gandhi in May, 1930, in the same cell in which he was locked today.

There was one sign of slight relenting on the part of the British government. It was announced the viceroy, the Earl of Willingdon, was now willing to receive a representative of the moderate deputations. Previously he had refused all invitations to arbitrate the question.

Meanwhile the natives' fight progressed rapidly as the Bombay provincial congress committee resolved itself into a war council. A call for volunteers was followed by a brisk enlistment.

The nationalist congress apparently did not expect Gandhi's arrest today. Its members appeared stunned at the news of the action.

The government stood ready to suppress any signs of violence, which though not advocated by Gandhi, was on the verge of breaking out.

The Bengal auxiliary forces were ordered to stand by in the event of demonstrations, and critical spots in Calcutta were heavily reinforced with police, regular and special. Many Europeans, not members of the auxiliary forces, were joining a special constabulary.

EMPLOYEES DONATE TO INSURE JOBS

WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 4.—Reconstruction of the Wheeling Traction Co. transportation line between Bellaire, O., and Shadyside appeared certain today when company employees offered to donate two days' pay to the reconstruction campaign fund.

This combined with money derived from solicitations, will be used in restoring workers who lost their jobs when the line was discontinued.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 4.—To carry on the traditions of her slain husband Mrs. Marcel Hendrix was today appointed sheriff of Greene County to succeed the leader of the six officers killed by the Young brothers in Saturday's massacre.

The appointment of the widow, who is said to be endowed with the same courage as her murdered husband, was announced by the county court and was expected to be certified today.

OHIO AND COLUMBUS MAYOR BATTLE OVER LICENSE TAG ORDER

State Deputies Look For Violations of Auto Tag Law

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Defying Mayor Henry W. Worley's order allowing motorists to drive with last year's license plates until Wednesday, fourteen state motor vehicle inspectors and two deputy sheriffs today patrolled the streets of Columbus apprehending all drivers still operating with 1931 tags.

The drive against license law violators, ordered by Col. Chalmers R. Wilson, state commissioner of motor vehicles, was conducted not only in Columbus but throughout Franklin county as well. Sheriff Harry T. Paul stated he had seven deputies patrolling the highways.

Only the deputies possessed arrest powers, but the inspectors were commissioned to file affidavits against violators.

The state's action in marshaling inspectors here for a drive to enforce the license law followed Mayor Worley's refusal last Saturday to rescind his order prolonging the time when 1932 license plates lawfully should be displayed.

Although the state law calls for January 1, Mayor Worley intended to permit Columbus citizens until January 6, instructing city police not to make arrests because he didn't desire to "oppress the people."

Despite the pleadings of Wilson and Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, who regarded the leniency as a "bad precedent," Worley persisted in fulfilling his pledge.

Brown pointed out that the tags were available far enough in advance for Columbus residents to have obtained them by the first of the year the same as other persons throughout the state.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Treasury balance as of Dec. 31 $474,689,558.83. Expenditures: $6,159,161.92; Customs receipts: $26,549,413.25.

CONGRESS RETURNS TO FACE DIFFICULT TASKS AND DISCORD

Tariff Revision May Be First Problem Undertaken

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—With the Hoover administration and Democratic leadership of the house in open discord, the seventy-second congress returned to session today from a fortnight's holiday to act upon the perplexing problems of revising the tariff, balancing the budget, stabilizing credit and relieving unemployment.

Balancing the budget, with the treasury $2,000,000,000 "in the red," will prove the most difficult task. It will involve an increase of federal taxes to raise new revenue, probable authorization of a bond issue to push payment of a part of the deficit into the future, and strict economies in enacting the $5,000,000,000 appropriation program for the next fiscal year.

The tariff issue may be settled first. The Democrats are expected to strip President Hoover of his tax revising powers and authorize the U. S. tariff commission to deal directly with congress. This likely will provide for reciprocal reductions in tariffs with other nations. Congress undoubtedly will enact any program the Democrats adopt, due to their control of the house and their Republican insurgent coalition in the senate.

The house will consider both the tariff and tax issues this week. The house ways and means committee will meet Tuesday to act upon a tariff bill, which will touch none of the existing rates. That measure may pass the house before the end of the week. The tax hearings will begin Thursday.

The senate meanwhile will be concerned over credit legislation. It may begin debate this week on the administration's $500,000,000 reconstruction credit corporation, designed to release frozen assets and relieve the credit structure of the nation. Then may follow the administration's bill, providing $100,000,000 capital to strengthen the federal land banks, which deal largely with agricultural interests. It must wait on the house for both tariff and tax bill.

Unemployment relief apparently has been sidetracked in the house but the progressives in the senate will force the issue to the front in that branch of congress. The La Follette-Costigan bill, appropriating millions for the relief of starving unemployed, will be reported to the senate shortly. Unless the Democratic leadership lines up behind it, the bill may be doomed. Thus far, Democratic leaders have been silent on the subject.

Hundreds of other issues will concern congress before the present session ends. There will be numerous investigations in the senate, demands for agricultural relief, action to reform federal election laws, an effort to regulate the flotation of foreign bond issues in this country and the Muscle Shoals problem. Unless congress shows a disposition to speed its legislative activity, far beyond the pace displayed before the Christmas recess, many of these measures will fall by the wayside.

SOLDIER-FLYER IS REPORTED MISSING

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 4.—Airport authorities here today expressed concern over the fate of Charles E. Gilbert, 21, Vanceburg, Ky., baker in the quartermaster's division at Fort Thomas army post, who disappeared yesterday afternoon in a training plane.

Gilbert had permission to practice take-offs and landings from Luken Airport when he and the plane, an Aerona training craft, vanished in the direction of Louisville after the second take-off.

Airport authorities had expressly cautioned Gilbert against leaving the field. Once before the flyer, who had approximately three and one-half hours solo flying, took a trip over Fort Thomas in his training plane and it was necessary to send out another pilot to show him back to the airport.

The craft in which Gilbert disappeared yesterday carried only enough gasoline, airport officials said, for approximately two hours of flying.

Gilbert's home according to army records, is at Vanceburg, Ky.

SPECIAL OFFICERS PATROL HONOLULU

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 4.—To clean up vice conditions in Honolulu and safeguard white women from attacks by natives, Gov. Lawrence Judd today supplemented the forces of territorial and Honolulu police by appointment of a deputy personnel of sixty selected officers.

Restlessness in Honolulu was increased through an attack upon Mrs. James Odowda, pretty young wife of an oil company executive, by Luis Kalkapu, 26, an escaped murderer, office here.

AMERICAN DIPLOMAT BEATEN BY JAPANESE SENTRIES AT MUKDEN

ALL JUST ONE BIG FAMILY

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 4.—The conventions of society were shattered and the eternal triangle proved not so acute today when servants at the Fowler McCormick residence here, revealed that the wealthy young Chicagoan was en route to New York to be the luncheon guest today of James A. Stillman, Sr., divorced husband of Mrs. "Fifi" McCormick.

McCormick was accompanied by "Fifi" and 13-year-old Guy Stillman, whose paternity Stillman once denied in an unsuccessful divorce action. The Stillmans credited their reconciliation following the unsuccessful divorce action, to the intercession of McCormick, who served as counselor and friend to each.

THIRD PARTY RUMOR HEARD; MOVEMENT STARTED IN STATES

League For Independent Political Action Behind Task

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Rumblings of a third party which would combat the Republican and Democratic parties were heard anew today.

Dr. John Dewey, national chairman of the League for Independent Political Action, announced that state conferences in eighteen commonwealths for the purpose of organizing state third party movements is the program of the league for the next five months.

The states to be reached, he said are Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, Utah, Colorado, Maine and West Virginia.

The national convention of the league, Dr. Dewey said, will follow these state conferences and consequently has been postponed until May, or possibly until June, so it will follow the old party conventions.

Howard Y. Williams, executive secretary of the League for Independent Political Action, told International News Service that the league "is moving definitely to ward the formation of a third party." He said his organization is striving to interest the workers, farmers, trade union groups and others who are in favor of "progressive" legislation.

"There is no hope, apparently, in either of the old parties," said Williams. "If the reactionaries succeed in nominating one of their number for the presidency on the Democratic ticket, the progressives of the country would not stand for two Hoovers and would be ready for third party action."

Williams declared that the league would be against such possible Democratic presidential candidates as Newton D. Baker of Ohio, Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, and Owen D. Young of New York.

Dewey outlined the major problems he said would demand attention from 1932-1936, as follows:

- 1.—Unemployment.
- 2.—Money, banking and credit.
- 3.—Taxation and the tariff.
- 4.—Agriculture.
- 5.—People's rights, including the problem of prohibition.
- 6.—Power.
- 7.—International relations.

Dr. Dewey in a statement issued today said building a united third party is made difficult by the lack of adequate state organizations in most of the commonwealths. Many of the states are "without any driving force" and that is what handicaps, he said, a united third party ticket in 1932.

Therefore the league is now concentrating on the building of third party state movements which Dr. Dewey said will give confidence to the Minnesota Farmer-Laborites, the Socialists, and the Progressives still within the old parties, "to come together in a united national movement in the interest of workers and farmers."

The league, according to Williams, has been active in furthering the candidacy of "Progressives" in cities such as Minneapolis, Minn., and Rockport, Ill., and is contemplating at this time a campaign to induce the miners of West Virginia to form a third party organization.

Government May Reopen Manchuria Dispute With Protest

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The attack at Mukden by Japanese soldiers upon the American vice consul, Culver B. Chamberlain, of Kansas City, Mo., was entirely unprovoked and unjustified, the American minister at Peiping informed the state department today.

The minister said energetic protest had been made to the Japanese legation at Peiping by himself, and another protest had been made by the American consul general, Myrl S. Myers at Mukden with the Japanese consulate there. Myers' protest suggested that severe punishment be meted out to the soldiers who made the attack.

The American minister, Nelson T. Johnson, said he had been informed of the incident by Myers at Mukden. Myers reported that Chamberlain, while enroute to the railway station in Mukden in his automobile at 6:30 a. m. Jan. 3, was stopped by three Japanese soldiers. After Chamberlain had identified himself by his diplomatic passport, the soldiers attacked him without justification and struck him in the face many times. His face was badly bruised but otherwise he was uninjured. Myers said he had reported the incident to the Japanese consulate with the suggestion that severe penalties be meted out. Myers said Chamberlain was leaving for Harbin the afternoon of January 3.

Johnson reported the incident orally to the Japanese Legation in Peiping, together with his protest. He asked also that Myers report results of the protest made at Mukden.

The unprovoked attack may serve as the key for the United States to reopen the entire Manchurian controversy. A protest by this government over the manhandling of one of its diplomatic officials by Japanese troops appeared almost certain today.

Secretary of State Stimson and his advisers on Far Eastern matters have remained absolutely mute since the Japanese government, on Dec. 26, tossed aside the formal protests of the United States, Great Britain and France, and announced it would proceed with the plan for complete military occupation of Manchow. That plan now has been carried out, the last remaining Chinese citadel in Manchuria, Chinchow, having fallen to the Japanese army without resistance.

Intimations have been given, however, that Stimson was waiting for some definite, substantial proof on which to hang a further protest which would, in effect, reopen the entire controversy—at least, so far as this government is concerned. Several such "pegs" were furnished over the week-end. An American consular official was maltreated in Mukden; An assistant military attaché of the Peiping legation was held for questioning at Loupangtze by the Japanese military, and at least one American woman's life was endangered by the bombing of Koupingtze by Japanese airplanes.

A brief dispatch was received from Col. Nelson E. Margretts, American military attaché at Peiping, saying his assistant, Lieut. Harry S. Aldrich, had been released after

ONE WAY TO MEET THOSE BILLS

DID Santa Claus leave you holding the bag on bills, too?

Funny,—how Santa can disrupt the household budget and pile up the bills that begin arriving around the first of the year.

With the usual mid-winter bills adding their total to the daily accumulation in the mail box, the need for ready money in the family pocket-book was never greater.

And that's where the Gazette's classified ads come in handy. A survey of almost any household will reveal articles that can be turned into ready cash if a market could be found. The classified ads create this market by bringing buyer and seller together.

And the ads themselves cost just a tiny percentage of this added revenue that helps to balance Santa's extravaganzas. Just phone 111 and ask for an ad-taker.

Little Girl

BRYAN, O., Jan. 4.—Baffled by the mysterious slaying, authorities today scoured this section for the murdered of Kathleen Carver, 12, who was shot to death Sunday afternoon on the rear doorstep of a neighbor's home, where she had gone to visit playmates.

With no apparent motive being advanced by the child's parents Mr. and Mrs. Otis Carver, or Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bender, at whose home the slaying occurred, county officials worked on two possible theories. They believed her death was accidental or that she was shot by a robber.

At the time of the shooting, the Bender home was vacated and the child's body was not discovered until they returned late in the afternoon. Her clothes remained intact but a slight evidence of powder burns appeared on the girl's coat just above the right hip, Coroner Frederick Watkins declared.

Motorists who passed the Bender home during the afternoon, informed authorities they had seen the child's body on the rear step but attached no significance to it because they thought she evidently was playing with other children. Others told of seeing her walking from her home to the death scene about half a mile distant. None, however, had heard gun shots nor seen anyone in that vicinity with firearms.

Careful examination of the Bender home showed that it had not been entered during their absence. In the absence of evidence of a criminal attack, Dr. Watkins prepared to conduct a post-mortem examination today. Relatives and neighbors will be questioned further in hopes of obtaining some tangible clues.

SIX BANK BANDITS ON TRIAL MONDAY

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Three of the six men accused of holding up and stealing $2,700 from the Grove City Savings Bank were to go on trial here today on charges of entering a bank with intent to commit a felony. They are Frank Croome, 20, Columbus; Frank Mart, 19, Dover; and Angelo Peruchio, 21, of Canton.

Carl Heriz, 23, of Columbus already has pleaded guilty to the robbery and will be sentenced at the conclusion of the trial. Frank Gattano and Edward Tangy, both of Canton, who also were indicted for the hold-up, have not been arrested. Life terms in Ohio State Penitentiary can be given the men if they are convicted with leniency recommendations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Treasury balance as of Dec. 31 $474,589,558.83. Expenditures: $6,159,161.02; Customs receipts: $26,349,413.25.

CONGRESS RETURNS TO FACE DIFFICULT TASKS AND DISCORD

Tariff Revision May Be
First Problem
Undertaken

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—With the Hoover administration and Democratic leadership of the house in open discord, the seventy-second congress returned to session today from a fortnight's holiday to act upon the perplexing problems of revising the tariff, balancing the budget, stabilizing credit and relieving unemployment.

Balancing the budget, with the treasury $2,000,000,000 "in the red," will prove the most difficult task. It will involve an increase of federal taxes to raise new revenue, probable authorization of a bond issue to push payment of a part of the deficit into the future, and strict economies in enacting the $5,000,000,000 appropriation program for the next fiscal year.

The tariff issue may be settled first. The Democrats are expected to strip President Hoover of his tax revising powers and authorize the U. S. tariff commission to deal directly with congress. This likely will provide for reciprocal reductions in tariffs with other nations. Congress undoubtedly will enact any program the Democrats adopt, due to their control of the house and their Republican insurgent coalition in the senate.

The house will consider both the tariff and tax issues this week. The house ways and means committee will meet Tuesday to act upon a tariff bill, which will touch none of the existing rates. That measure may pass the house before the end of the week. The tax hearings will begin Thursday.

The senate meanwhile will be concerned over credit legislation. It may begin debate this week on the administration's $500,000,000 reconstruction credit corporation, designed to release frozen assets and relieve the credit structure of the nation. Then may follow the administration's bill, providing $100,000,000 capital to strengthen the federal land banks, which deal largely with agricultural interests. It must wait on the house for both tariff and tax bill.

Unemployment relief apparently has been sidetracked in the house but the progressives in the senate will force the issue to the front in that branch of congress. The La Follette-Costigan bill, appropriating millions for the relief of starving unemployed, will be reported to the senate shortly. Unless the Democratic leadership lines up behind it, the bill may be doomed. Thus far, Democratic leaders have been silent on the subject.

Hundreds of other issues will concern congress before the present session ends. There will be numerous investigations in the senate, demands for agricultural relief, action to reform federal education laws, an effort to regulate the flotation of foreign bond issues in this country and the Muscle Shoals problem. Unless congress shows a disposition to speed its legislative activity, far beyond the pace displayed before the Christmas recess, many of these measures will fall by the wayside.

SOLDIER-FLYER IS REPORTED MISSING

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 4.—Airport authorities here today expressed concern over the fate of Charles Gilbert, 21, Vanceburg, Ky., baker in the quartermaster's division at Fort Thomas army post, who disappeared yesterday afternoon in a training plane.

Gilbert had permission to practice take-offs and landings from Lunken Airport when he and the plane, an Aerona training craft, vanished in the direction of Louisville after the second take-off.

Airport authorities had expressly cautioned Gilbert against leaving the field. Once before the flyer, who had approximately three and one-half hours solo flying, took a trip over Fort Thomas in his training plane and it was necessary to send out another pilot to show him back to the airport.

The craft in which Gilbert disappeared yesterday carried only enough gasoline, airport officials said, for approximately two hours of flying.

Gilbert's home according to army records, is at Vanceburg, Ky.

SPECIAL OFFICERS PATROL HONOLULU

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 4.—To clean up vice conditions in Honolulu and safeguard white women from attacks by natives, Gov. Lawrence Judd today supplemented the forces of territorial and Honolulu police by appointment of a deputy personnel of sixty selected officers.

Restlessness in Honolulu was increased through an attack upon Mrs. James Odowda, pretty young wife of an oil company executive, by Luis Kalkapu, 26, an escaped murderer.

AMERICAN DIPLOMAT BEATEN BY JAPANESE SENTRIES AT MUKDEN

ALL JUST ONE BIG FAMILY

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 4.—The conventions of society were shattered and the eternal triangle proved not so acute today when servants at the Fowler McCormick residence here, revealed that the wealthy young Chicagoan was en route to New York to be the luncheon guest today of James A. Stillman, Sr., divorced husband of Mrs. Fifi McCormick.

McCormick was accompanied by "Fifi" and 12-year-old Guy Stillman, whose paternity Stillman once denied in an unsuccessful divorce action. The Stillmans credited their reconciliation following the unsuccessful divorce action, to the intercession of McCormick, who served as counselor and friend to each.

THIRD PARTY RUMOR HEARD; MOVEMENT STARTED IN STATES

League For Independent
Political Action Behind Task

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—Rumblings of a third party which would combat the Republican and Democratic parties were heard anew today.

Dr. John Dewey, national chairman of the League for Independent Political Action, announced that state conferences in eighteen commonwealths for the purpose of organizing state third party movements is the program of the league for the next five months.

The states to be reached, he said are Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Oregon, California, Utah, Colorado, Maine and West Virginia.

The national convention of the league, Dr. Dewey said, will follow these state conferences and consequently has been postponed until May, or possibly until June, so it will follow the old party conventions.

Howard Y. Williams, executive secretary of the League for Independent Political Action, told International News Service that the league "is moving definitely toward the formation of a third party."

He said his organization is striving to interest the workers, farmers, trade union groups and others who are in favor of "progressive" legislation.

"There is no hope, apparently, in either of the old parties," said Williams. "If the reactionaries succeed in nominating one of their number for the presidency on the Democratic ticket, the progressives of the country would stand for two Hoovers and would be ready for third party action."

Williams declared that the league would be against such possible Democratic presidential candidates as Newton D. Baker of Ohio, Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, and Owen D. Young of New York.

Dewey outlined the major problems he said would demand attention from 1932-1936, as follows: 1.—Unemployment. 2.—Money, banking and credit. 3.—Taxation and the tariff. 4.—Agriculture. 5.—People's rights, including the problem of prohibition. 6.—Power. 7.—International relations.

Dr. Dewey in a statement issued today said building a united third party is made difficult by the lack of adequate state organizations in most of the commonwealths. Many of the states are "without any driving force" and that is what handicaps, he said, a united third party ticket in 1932.

Therefore the league is now concentrating on the building of third party state movements which Dr. Dewey said will give confidence to the Minnesota Farmer-Laborites, the Socialists, and the Progressives still within the old parties, "to come together in a united national movement in the interest of workers and farmers."

The league, according to Williams, has been active in furthering the candidacy of "Progressives" in cities such as Minneapolis, Minn.; and Rockport, Ill., and is contemplating at this time a campaign to induce the miners of West Virginia to form a third party organization.

FOUR CHILDREN ILL

NEW LEXINGTON, O., Jan. 4.—Four children, ranging from one to six years of age, in the family of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, of Hopewell Twp., have contracted scarlet fever, according to a report filed with the Perry County health office here.

Government May Reopen Manchuria Dispute With Protest

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The attack at Mukden by Japanese soldiers upon the American vice consul, Culver B. Chamberlain, of Kansas City, Mo., was entirely unprovoked and unjustified, the American minister at Peiping informed the state department today.

The minister said energetic protest had been made to the Japanese legation at Peiping by himself, and another protest had been made by the American consul general, Myrl S. Myers at Mukden with the Japanese consulate there. Myers' protest suggested that severe punishment be meted out to the soldiers who made the attack.

The American minister, Nelson T. Johnson, said he had been informed of the incident by Myers at Mukden. Myers reported that Chamberlain, while enroute to the railway station in Mukden in Myer's automobile at 6:30 a. m. Jan. 3, was stopped by three Japanese soldiers. After Chamberlain had identified himself by his diplomatic passport, the soldiers attacked him without justification and struck him in the face many times. His face was badly bruised but otherwise he was uninjured. Myers said he had reported the incident to the Japanese consulate with the suggestion that severe penalties be meted out. Myers said Chamberlain was leaving for Harbin the afternoon of January 3.

Johnson reported the incident orally to the Japanese Legation in Peiping, together with his protest. He asked also that Myers report results of the protest made at Mukden.

The unprovoked attack may serve as the key for the United States to reopen the entire Manchurian controversy.

A protest by this government over the manhandling of one of its diplomatic officials by Japanese troops appeared almost certain today.

Secretary of State Stimson and his advisers on Far Eastern matters have remained absolutely mute since the Japanese government, on Dec. 26, tossed aside the formal protests of the United States, Great Britain and France, and announced it would proceed with the plan for complete military occupation of Manchuria. That plan now has been carried out, the last remaining Chinese citadel in Manchuria, Chinchow, having fallen to the Japanese army without resistance.

Intimations have been given, however, that Stimson was waiting for some definite, substantial peg on which to hang a further protest which would, in effect, reopen the entire controversy, at least, so far as this government is concerned.

Several such "pegs" were furnished over the week-end. An American consular official was maltreated in Mukden; An assistant military attache of the Peiping legation was held for questioning at Loupanzhe by the Japanese military, and at least one American woman's life was endangered by the bombing of Koupanzhe by Japanese airplanes.

A brief dispatch was received from Col. Nelson E. Margretts, American military attache at Peiping, saying his assistant, Lieut. Harry S. Aldrich, had been released after

ONE WAY TO MEET THOSE BILLS

DID Santa Claus leave you holding the bag on bills, too?

Funny,—how Santa can disrupt the household budget and pile up the bills that begin arriving around the first of the year.

With the usual mid-winter bills adding their total to the daily accumulation in the mail box, the need for ready money in the family pocket-book was never greater.

And that's where the Gazette's classified ads come in handy. A survey of almost any household will reveal articles that can be turned into ready cash if a market could be found. The classified ads create this market by bringing buyer and seller together.

And the ads themselves cost just a tiny percentage of the added revenue that helps to balance Santa's extravagance.

Just phone 111 and ask for an ad-taker.

Adventure Galore

Given up for lost when he failed to return from a fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico, Ralph "Jerry" Selz, aviation cadet at Randolph Field, Texas, turned up three months later after a most remarkable series of adventures. Picked up by a rum-runner after his boat had been swept into the Gulf by the tide he was transferred to a Swedish ship, which took him to the obscure port of Tres Ninos, Honduras. From there he hiked through Honduras, Guatemala and Salvador until he reached La Union, where Capt. Calcutt of the motorship City of San Francisco gave him transportation back to San Francisco.

Mysteriously Slain

Mystery surrounds the attack which cost the life of Mrs. Hulda Lang (above), of Covington, Ky., and the serious wounding of her husband, Frank. Entering the driveway of their home, the couple was ambushed by gunmen, who pumped five bullets into Mrs. Lang's body, killing her instantly. Three bullets hit her husband, who is now fighting for his life. A policeman who followed the couple arrived too late to prevent the tragedy.

Geneva Delegate

Appointed by President Hoover as a member of the United States delegation to the Disarmament Conference at Geneva, Miss Mary E. Woolley (above), president of Mount Holyoke College, Mass., will be the only woman member of the delegation. In accepting the appointment, Miss Woolley said she favored better international understanding, peace and good-will throughout the world.

Plunged to Death

Carideo in Benedict Role

Here is the first and exclusive picture of Frank Carideo, former All-America quarterback at Notre Dame, with his bride, the former Vera Crawley. Carideo, who many experts say was one of the greatest quarterbacks in football history, was an assistant coach at his Alma Mater last season. Photo was made in the Carideo home at Mount Vernon, N. Y., where the couple is spending the holidays. Angelo, Frank's younger brother, is another rising star at Notre Dame.

Wild West Recalled

Known many years ago as "the boy who was kidnaped by Sitting Bull," J. H. Porter, of Wichita, Kansas, is once more in the news. One of the wealthiest men in the State, Porter, who is now 75, is fighting the action of his daughters, Mrs. E. W. Youngmeyer and Mrs. Greta Porter Palmer, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who seek to throw his property into receivership. They claim he is dissipating his own fortune, amounting to many millions, as well as the estate left them by their mother.

Would Oust Mellon

Citing the law that prohibits a Secretary of the Treasury from being directly or indirectly interested in trade or commerce, Representative Wright Patman, Democrat, of Texas, has stated that within three days of the reconvening of Congress he will introduce a resolution seeking the impeachment of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon. Representative Patman considers Mr. Mellon's connection with banking and industry makes him ineligible.

Hosts at White House Party

Presiding at the "depression party" held at the White House, Peggy Ann Hoover, aged six, and Herbert, 3d, aged four, are shown with some of the presents they collected for needy children. The young guests at the party were drawn from Washington's juvenile officialdom and instead of receiving presents, the youngsters brought toys, clothes and other desirable things for distribution to less fortunate children. The First Lady and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., mother of the children, are also shown.

Victims of Depression

That the depression has insinuated its tentacles into a stratum of society that we thought was immune is evidenced by the above pictures. At left is the Rev. Albert E. Kent, of Saugus, Mass., with his daughter, Muriel, whose pitiful plight in poverty was recently discovered when he collapsed from hunger and malnutrition. It was disclosed that the clergyman had been living on $7 a week, out of which he supported a wife and four children. Right is Mrs. Ella Kent, his second wife. Top are three of his children, left to right, Albert, Jr., Mary and Laura. Kent confessed that his collapse was due to his going without food so that his family might eat.

Probe Into Death

The recent suicide by gas of Dorothy Cloutier, young unmarried mother, of Lynn, Mass., following so closely upon the death of John J. Anketell, said to have been her sweetheart, has started a probe into the demise of both. Anketell died only a few days prior to Dorothy's suicide and both bodies have been exhumed for an autopsy. Above Miss Cloutier is shown with her daughter, Barbara.

To Vindicate Late President

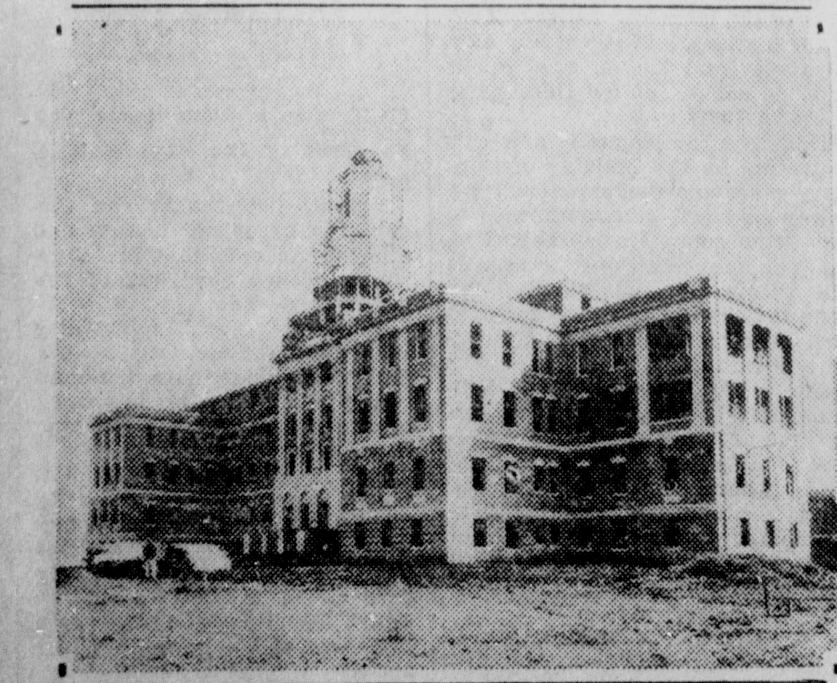

Photographed for the first time in many years, Harry M. Daugherty (left), Attorney General in the Harding and Coolidge Administrations, is shown in his home at Columbus, Ohio, with Thomas Dixon, famous author of Virginia, who collaborated with him in the writing of his memoirs. Daugherty, whose resignation was demanded by President Coolidge, takes issue in his book with attackers of President Harding and predicts a complete vindication for the late President "whose name has been dragged in the mire by money-hungry jackals."

Widow at Wilson Memorial

Guest of honor at a luncheon given under the auspices of the Women's Democratic Committee, at Washington, D. C., to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the birth of her husband, wartime President of the United States, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is shown as she listened to the eulogies on the late president. DAVID WATT CALLED SUDDENLY MONDAY; MRS. ELLIS CALLED

David B. Watt, 76, well-known Xenian, died suddenly from a heart attack at his home, 117 W. Market St., Monday morning about 11 o'clock. He had been suffering from heart trouble for the past two years but his condition had not been considered serious. He was in his usual health Monday morning and was up town only a short time before his death. He suffered the attack while on the rear porch of his home and died a few minutes after members of his family found him.

Mr. Watt was born on a farm on the Jamestown Pike, east of Xenia, February 21, 1855, the son of William and Sarah Watt. He spent his early life on the farm and later came to Xenia where he operated the Xenia Creamery Co. He later managed the Miami Valley Cream Station on W. Main St., but had been retired from active business for five years.

Mr. Watt is survived by three children: Robert C. Watt, Fort Wayne, Ind., Fleming Watt, this city and Mrs. Earl Short, at home. Three grandchildren survive besides a brother, James Watt, this city and a sister, Mrs. Agnes Nash, east of Xenia. His wife, who was before marriage, Miss Anna Fleming, preceded him in death in 1924. Funeral services will be held at the Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Watt was a member and an elder emeritus, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery. Friends may call at the home any time Tuesday evening.

MRS. ELIZA GORDON

Mrs. Eliza M. Gordon, 86, widow of John Gordon and life-long Greene Countian, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lou Bradds, E. Washington St., Jamestown, Sunday evening at 10:40 o'clock. Her death was the result of injuries she received in a fall twelve weeks ago.

Mrs. Gordon was the daughter of John "Squire" and Catherine Powell, pioneer Greene Countians and was a member of the Church of Christ, Jamestown. Her husband preceded her in death twelve years. Besides her daughter with whom she resided she is survived by two sons, Wilson Gordon, Dayton and J. T. Gordon, Springfield. A sister, Mrs. Belle Heilman, Dayton, six grandchildren and seven great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Mrs. Bradds Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be made in Grape Grove Cemetery.

MRS. HERBERT ELLIS

Mrs. Martha Ellis, 41, wife of C. Herbert Ellis, died at her home on Whiteman St., Yellow Springs, Monday morning at 2:30 o'clock following a lingering illness of several years' duration.

Mrs. Ellis was before marriage Miss Martha Van Hyning and was born in Zanesfield, O., where she spent her early life. She graduated from the Zanesville High School and later attended Antioch College, Yellow Springs and Ohio

State University, Columbus. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, Yellow Springs, and the Yellow Springs Chapter of the O. E. S. She was active in the W. C. T. U. and the Yellow Springs Library Association and at one time was head of the Girl Reserves in the village.

Mrs. Ellis is survived by her husband, who is clerk of the Yellow Springs board of public affairs and is superintendent of Yellow Springs' water and lighting system. She also leaves three daughters, Rosalyn, Carolyn and Virginia, all at home. The following brothers and sisters survive: Mrs. Anna Dunaway, Mrs. Sue Taylor, Grover C., and James Van Hyning, all of Zanesfield, O.; Samuel J. Van Hyning, Portland, Ore.; Mrs. William Holland, Kenton, O., and Mrs. C. W. Blackburn, East Orange, N. J. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

DRAWING TALENT CREDITED FOR CURE

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 4.—The accidental discovery by Jane Taylor Cleveland girl who has been bedridden for two years, that she had considerable drawing talent has been credited by physicians for her rapid recovery.

At one time near death from her illness, Miss Taylor's discovery, physicians said, revived in her the "desire to live" which they claimed restored her health after medicine had failed. The girl never received any final instruction in drawing.

GOING TOO FAR!

POLICE received a report at 6:50 p. m. Sunday that a Ford sport touring car, 1930 model, bearing license number D25357, belonging to Patrolman Stanley L. Nickel, had been stolen from in front of the Xenia Candy Kitchen, E. Main St., while the officer was inside the confectionery dicker over the purchase of a pack of chewing gum. The officer had left the ignition key in his car and when he came out the car was gone. Patrolman Nickel was assigned to the case and expects to prosecute a diligent search for the thief.

Mrs. Gordon was the daughter of John "Squire" and Catherine Powell, pioneer Greene Countians and was a member of the Church of Christ, Jamestown. Her husband preceded her in death twelve years. Besides her daughter with whom she resided she is survived by two sons, Wilson Gordon, Dayton and J. T. Gordon, Springfield. A sister, Mrs. Belle Hellman, Dayton, six grandchildren and seven great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Mrs. Brads Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be made in Grape Grove Cemetery.

MRS. HERBERT ELLIS

Mrs. Martha Ellis, 41, wife of C. Herbert Ellis, died at her home on Whiteman St., Yellow Springs, Monday morning at 2:30 o'clock following a lingering illness of several years' duration.

Mrs. Ellis was before marriage Miss Martha Van Hyning and was born in Zanesfield, O., where she spent her early life. She graduated from the Zanesville High School and later attended Antioch College, Yellow Springs and Ohio

State University, Columbus. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, Yellow Springs, and the Yellow Springs Chapter of the O. E. S. She was active in the W. C. T. U. and the Yellow Springs Library Association and at one time was head of the Girl Reserves in the village.

Mrs. Ellis is survived by her husband, who is clerk of the Yellow Springs board of public affairs and is superintendent of Yellow Springs water and lighting system. She also leaves three daughters, Rosalyn, Carolyn and Virginia, all at home. The following brothers and sisters survive: Mrs. Anna Dunaway, Mrs. Sue Taylor, Grover C., and James Van Hyning, all of Zanesfield, O.; Samuel J. Van Hyning, Portland, Ore.; Mrs. William Holland, Kenton, O., and Mrs. C. W. Blackburn, East Orange, N. J. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

DRAWING TALENT CREDITED FOR CURE

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 4.—The accidental discovery by Jane Taylor Cleveland girl who has been bedridden for two years, that she had considerable drawing talent has been credited by physicians for her rapid recovery.

At one time near death from her illness, Miss Taylor's discovery, physicians said, revived in her the "desire to live" which they claim restored her health after medicine had failed. The girl never received any final instruction in drawing.

GOING TOO FAR!

POLICE received a report at 6:50 p. m. Sunday that a Ford sport touring car, 1930 model, bearing license number D25,357, belonging to Patrolman Stanley L. Nickel, had been stolen from in front of the Xenia Candy Kitchen, E. Main St., while the officer was inside the confectionery dicker over the purchase of a pack of chewing gum. The officer had left the ignition key in his car and when he came out the car was gone. Patrolman Nickel was assigned to the case and expects to prosecute a diligent search for the thief.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Then said I in my heart, As it happeneth to the fool, so it happeneth even to me; and why was I then more wise? Then I said in my heart, that this also is vanity.—Ecclesiastes, ii, 15.

IS THERE A WAR MENACE?

In the light of the vast war budgets and war preparations, one would suppose that there is imminent danger of war. But is it really so? During the past decade the peace movement has made great headway. The world has been rapidly organizing for peace. The League of Nations for solving political controversies, with 54 members, the World Court for settling judicial disputes, with 45 members and the International labor organization for dealing with economic problems with 54 nations have been established and have already rendered notable service. Scores of obligatory arbitration treaties are now in force. Chief of all peace treaties is the Kellogg-Briand Peace Pact, by which 58 nations have renounced war as an instrument of national policy and have pledged themselves to use only methods of peace in seeking settlement of difficulties.

Any nation that now wantonly or carelessly starts a war will come under the certain condemnation of practically the whole world. All now know that every dispute and every claim of right can have public hearing and impartial judgment by neutrals. Under these conditions another world war is extremely improbable.

MILWAUKEE'S FINANCES

Milwaukee is one of the large industrial cities of the country which has a low tax rate and has its finances in good shape. It also does not worry about the crime problem.

For the last two decades the city has curtailed its borrowing to a minimum and instead of issuing bonds for annually recurring expenses it levies a cash tax. Three-fourths of the city departments are operated on a cash basis, and by buying for cash the city saves 10 percent.

Under a scientific budget system, the departments are held within the estimates, which prevents deficits and has resulted in surpluses. An amortization fund will be sufficiently large within 30 years to pay off the entire public debt. The city now has $3,000,000 in this fund.

The residents of Milwaukee are not satisfied with lax and slipshod methods but are vitally interested in a careful and businesslike administration of their public affairs. They apply an aggressive interest in civic affairs to every department of their municipal government, and consequently obtain maximum results.

The policy applies not only to the business administration but also to the police department and the courts. The police department functions as a police department, not as an agency that is responsive to the demands of crooked politicians. Racketeers and hoodlums shun Milwaukee, for they know that an honest police department will arrest them and an equally efficient court system will send them to prison.

Other American cities can learn many lessons about municipal administration from Milwaukee where an alert public opinion is responsible for effective city government. —Richmond Palladium.

Going Through "Sifting Process"

By SAMUEL GOLDWYN

Motion Picture Producer (Samuel Goldwyn was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1882. He immigrated to the United States in 1896, and became a naturalized citizen in 1902. Goldwyn organized the Jesse Lasky Feature Photoplay company in 1913, and in 1916 organized the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. He also organized the Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., as well as many other movie companies. He was a pioneer in inducing authors of America to work actively in promotion of motion pictures, and introduced Vilma Banky, Mary Garden, Geraldine Farrar and Pauline Frederick to the screen. Some of the most artistic pictures of the past year have been produced by Goldwyn, who believes in making few pictures, but those thoroughly.)

In every industry in its earlier phases there is a process by which many are drafted and then sifted. The sifting in the newly constituted industry of Hollywood is going on as rapidly as it can without impairing the machine. The present scale of production will not continue.

Several stars now receiving immense incomes will be weeded out of the "high-pressure group," and those with established drawing power will receive a percentage of box office receipts. Writers will also be paid on a royalty basis, as the playwright at present is paid. Frederick Lonsdale, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur have already done scenarios under such an arrangement.

Talent which does not draw at the box office is overpaid at any price. Much criticism has been leveled at the reported $30,000 a week which Constance Bennett receives for her work. What Miss Bennett received from Warner Brothers, however, was $300,000 for two productions, which amounted to $30,000 a week only for the period she was actually employed. The fact is, moreover, that the Warners made more on one Constance Bennett picture than on a half dozen others combined.

The difficulty, undoubtedly, has been, that those who misunderstand Hollywood and thus criticize most severely cannot see the trees for the woods.

Hollywood has been ridiculed for paying writers great sums and letting them wander around for months without doing anything. The truth is that writing is a talent, and the industry must have patience with that sort of talent. Writers cannot be forced.

There are in Hollywood two classes of writers, the conscientious workers who are trying to write and create, and the writer-racketeers who are trying to cash in on what they used to do. There are about as many of one class as of the other.

In fact, Hollywood is a beleaguered city set upon by the outside world. With film exportation cut some 50 percent by the introduction of sound, the industry is struggling courageously to justify itself to mankind.

Hollywood is working night and day, under a tension and pressure and with a relentless consistency that no one can understand who is not there, in the thick of it and a part of it.

The ultimate fact will prove that the readjustments that have to be made will be affected by the builders of the business. They are capable and they are doing it. Some businesses—most businesses, in fact—shut down when they rebuild and reorganize and undergo sweeping changes of product and policy. The motion picture business has not even slackened pace. The public and the industry as a whole can very well be grateful to Hollywood.

Although the success of well-made American pictures is assured throughout the English-speaking world, the loss of other foreign markets has meant that present costs of production cannot be maintained. Added to this has been the difficulty of an economic depression.

That the motion picture producing community has delivered as well as it has with a practically new medium, under world conditions as they are, is certainly a miracle.

There is the greatest hope for the theatres now if those who are building them realize that they cannot build faster than Hollywood can produce—they will not let the machinery of exhibition outrun the capacity of human genius to produce entertainment.

The present scale of production will not continue. It has been said that some of the big studios are equipped to turn out fifty pictures a year. There is no studio that is mentally equipped to turn out more than twenty pictures a year, and perhaps not that many.

MY NEW YORK

NEW YORK. — Straws in the hurricane:

During the annual holiday raids on Broadway's hiccough houses, enforcement officers displayed an unwonted restraint in the matter of drapes, rugs, furniture and the like. Not an axe descended on a Rembrandt behind the bar (where Maxfield Parrish used to reign in pre-speakie, more conservative days). Not a knife was slashed through $10,000 tapestries. Maybe raiders were impressed by splendor of the new night Rendezvous salons, and again, it is possible that prohibition sleuths are more genteel and considerate in these days.

The Oriental custom of bargaining — to the point of hagglng—is invading places as upcity as Park avenue gown shops. . . Customers read price tags or ask for quotations and then begin to talk about what they are willing to pay. Shops that would have very nearly thrown you out for attempting to trade sharply three years ago now are willing to discuss the matter. But it's all done with a new camaraderie and good nature.

Ship news reporters here scout rumor of the Mary Pickford-Doug Fairbanks rift, pointing out that Doug won't give out an interview until Mary is on the scene and depends on her for this and that little thing like any thoroughly domesticated hubby of the old school.

Queens boulevard, on Long Island, will be beautified by a 200-foot strip of artificial grass, concocted of slate and asphalt. The paving concerns which manufacture the stuff swear, that it is lovelier than the real thing. You have to show me!

The coach driver on the N. T. A. Christmas seals is ensconced on the LEFT side of the box, which is all wrong. . . But the tally-ho is so long outmoded that William H. Vanderbilt, a confirmed coachman, and an Indiana lady were the only two who pointed out the error. . . That's nothing; many don't recall that all autos used to seat the driver on the right-hand side, as is still done in all left-side-of-the-street European countries.

HIS ANNUAL NEW YEAR'S CARD

REPARATIONS THEORY ADVANCED IN EUROPE VIEWED UNSOUND HERE

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—News that Germany will not be able to resume reparations payments (as announced by the Young plan advisory committee at Basel, Switzerland) when the Hoover moratorium expires June 30, will be an early 1932 topic of discussion in both houses of congress.

The tidings are of interest in this country, inasmuch as America's European war debtors will not resume paying what they owe to Uncle Sam, either, until Germany resumes reparations payments.

The advisory committee made this abundantly clear, and the old world press energetically rubbed the idea in immediately afterward.

In itself, the advisory committee's report caused no surprise in congressional circles.

Some surprise is expressed, however, at the extraordinary crust of the banker-members of the body in broadcasting their findings within half a dozen hours after the United States senate's vote ratifying the Hoover moratorium.

The withholding of the document until the lawmakers were irrevocably on record is spoken of as very readily understandable; it is agreed that its release while debate still was progressing might conceivably have prevented the debt-suspension plan's approval, despite all the pains taken to insure its indorsement.

What critics of the committee do animadvert upon in hurt tones is the advisory group's contemptuous disregard of American public opinion in issuing its statement so soon after senatorial action—which, it will be recalled, included a congressional declaration directly opposing any further concessions to Uncle Sam's European debtors.

Since further concessions are precisely what the advisory committee insists on, its report is quite interpreted, in fact, as an answer to congress' form of moratorium ratification, virtually notifying Uncle Samuel where he "gets off."

Be it remembered also that ratification by the house of representatives preceded senatorial ratification by a few days. Thus the committee was in a position to know what probably was coming, enabling it to be prompt with its announcement, which was in print in American newspapers even before President Hoover had signed the congressional resolution approving his debt suspension program.

No one of Capitol Hill disputes that, in a sense, the United States will be helpless if Europe refuses to pay its debts. There is no hint that an attempt ever will be made to collect them by force.

Nevertheless, in one respect America is at an advantage.

The debtor nations manifestly are bent on escaping repayment, but they are exceedingly reluctant to repudiate their obligations outright. They desire the United States to assure them that this country does not consider them morally in debt to the United States treasury at all.

This, of course, the United States does not have to do.

It is problematical just how genuine the European wartime allies themselves believe in the proposition which many diplomatic conversations have indicated that they would like to have Americans accept.

The theory which they have persistently advanced is that they furnished the men and America the money (money only, until near the conflict's end) to defeat Germany; therefore that the United States should not expect to be repaid.

Uninformed Europeans may swallow this argument whole.

Men in important government posts and financiers of much consequence necessarily must be aware that (regardless of America's absolute lack of any original interest in the war) the principle of all actual wartime obligations due to Uncle Sam has been completely cancelled by post-armistice settlements; that Uncle Sam himself is gradually meeting the bonds issued to float these loans; that Europe is paying merely a part of the interest which Uncle Samuel is compelled to pay on them; that the obligations now in such violent controversy are of a purely post-war, commercial character.

German reparations have no more relation to them than the debts of any Latin American republic in the United States.

TOFFEE

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Two cups light brown sugar, four teaspoons vinegar, one-half cup butter or margarin, one-half cup seedless raisins. Heat sugar, butter or margarin, and vinegar over a very moderate fire, stir until the sugar dissolves, then boil without stirring until the syrup forms a hard ball when tried in cold water. Pour carefully around and over the raisins which have been arranged in rows in greased pans. When cold, cut in squares.

ALL of US

By MARSHALL MASLIN

The Stranger. Afflicted. He Laughed. Watching. I Was Ashamed.

I was tired and my head ached and I felt depressed when that other man came into the restaurant and sat down at a table near mine.

I heard his laugh before I saw the man himself — and even the laugh was like a bugle blowing and a bright banner waving. I thought, "There's a happy fellow."

Three people were with him, but I don't remember them. He was the only one I noticed. . . I kept my eyes on him. I stared and listened.

The laughing stranger was young — and he was deaf! He carried a little box slung over one shoulder. He had little black receivers over his ears and a metal thing over his head. For an instant I was sorry for him — until he laughed again and showed his fine white teeth. Then I was sorry for everybody else. His head was magnificent, his eyes were large and understanding, his mouth was expressive, the expression on his face was humorous, his smile was a masterpiece in tender understanding.

Sometimes, as I looked at him, he seemed to draw away into himself. His eyes drooped, and his face became sad and wistful. He had that look that the withdrawn deaf so often have — as if they were alone and talking only to themselves.

And then one of the others would speak to him and his eyes would light up and he'd say something and they'd all laugh and his own laugh would ring out more gaily than all the others.

I heard nothing that any of them said. I did not need to hear, it was enough that I could see this laughing stranger whose affliction was less to him than to those who looked at him.

My own dinner was finished long before his and I had no excuse for staying longer.

I got up and went out, but as I did so I felt as if I ought to go over and thank that stranger for what he'd done. Of course I didn't do it. One doesn't do such things. The other fellow might not understand and, besides, you do not thank laughing strangers for being what they are — any more than you thank the falling rain or the bearing trees or the blossoming vines or the warm and strengthening sun for what they do to you.

But, just the same, you can be grateful!

Tribes Used Modern Aids

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Primitive tribes in some parts of the world long since anticipated the modern hygiene of infancy.

There are three Kashmiri cures for "trouble in the bones," according to Vaughn: "(1) A special clay called Baramulla earth, rich in calcium phosphate; (2) pills made of fish liver, and (3) rubbing with mustard oil and exposure to sunlight."

It is curious how closely this primitive tribe of people has come to the conclusions of the most modern scientific research on the prevention of such a disease of the bones as rickets. The Baramulla earth containing calcium furnished them extra material for the building of new bony tissue. The fish liver pills are comparable to the cod liver oil all our babies take as a regular part of their diet for the building of bone. And the sunlight is the regular method of preventing rickets which has become so popular during the last few years.

The mustard oil may even contain ergosterol, and when irradiated with the sun's rays becomes that extremely modern product—irradiated ergosterol or viosterol.

This should remind parents that sunlight is essential to healthy growth and development in very young children. In the winter there is always danger that there will not be a sufficient exposure to sunlight. It should be remembered that skyshine, as it is called, the light coming from a cloudy sky, has some value—calculated at about one-fourth the value of sunlight. It is better to be outdoors even for a little while even on a cloudy day than to be indoors. Unless special arrangements are made, sunlight does not reach us indoors, because the active rays of the sun do not pass through our ordinary window glass; special window glass, however, which does not cut out the ultra-violet rays can be obtained.

Sunlight produces chemical changes in our bodies. Its value consists in producing substances which contain Vitamin D. It may possibly produce other vitamins, according to recent research, but we are fairly certain it produces Vitamin D. This substance can be introduced into the body, however, even if exposure to sunlight is impossible. It can be obtained in cod liver oil, and in the relatively new product, viosterol. It is notable that people living in northern lands, where there is a long, dark winter, eat a great deal of caviare and other forms of fish oils.

This treatment is especially directed against the development of rickets. Rickets is a disease of infancy and, therefore, it is particularly the children under three who need sunshine or cod liver oil or both. Rickets always shows an increase in the spring—at the end of the dark winter days, when the accumulated effect of lack of sunshine makes itself known.

Rickets can be prevented, let me emphasize in conclusion, and should be prevented during the winter months. See that your baby has as much exposure to sunlight as possible; see that it has cod liver oil or viosterol daily—the diet.

How To Get Her Man?

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Miss Lee, I've known a young man for the past four or five years. We are very good friends. Lately he has obtained a good position and soon will be in a position to marry.

"I love this young fellow and I'd like him for a husband, and if he should marry someone else I think I'd go crazy. He thinks a lot of me, takes me out when he comes to town, but I don't think he knows how much I love him.

"We have been corresponding for some time and his letters are quite affectionate. It seems to me that if I should show him—I mean give him an idea—that I care, I could have him for a lover.

"I suppose you will tell me not to show this man that I love him, but I know that some fellows need a little encouragement. I know some girls who are married today, and if they hadn't tried hard to get their husbands, they would be single. I think that one can show that she loves a fellow and still not be too forward about it. I'm always afraid this young man will meet someone and that I'll be left, so I'd like to get him for myself before it's too late.

"Could you give me an idea of what I can say to him, and not appear too anxious? There must be some way of letting a fellow know that you care for him and still be respectable."

That's an interesting question, Judy. But so much depends on the type of chap this boy friend of yours happens to be.

I, too, know many girls who would never have "gotten their men" unless they had gone after them, just as you say. The catch is that if a girl appears too eager with some men they lose the men. I've heard men talk about their "narrow escapes" and how certain girls tried to "hook" them, too.

It's a delicate situation requiring diplomacy. If a man wants to be caught the sailing is pretty plain and easy. A proprietary and affectionate attitude on the part of the girl does the trick. As his letters are affectionate, answer them in kind, growing a little warmer each time. Watch his reaction. He may be hoping for this and needing just such encouragement to "pop" the question or to drift into that attitude of taking it for granted that you will eventually marry, which is common with young people who are fond of one another and congenial.

Dismiss from your mind any idea that this encouragement is not "descent." Your love for him and his evident affection for you give you the right to try to win him for life if you can. Good luck. Let me know when the wedding date is set.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Then said I in my heart, As it happeneth to the fool, so it happeneth even to me; and why was I then more wise? Then I said in my heart, that this also is vanity.—Ecclesiastes, ii, 15.

IS THERE A WAR MENACE?

In the light of the vast war budgets and war preparations, one would suppose that there is imminent danger of war. But is it really so? During the past decade the peace movement has made great headway. The world has been rapidly organizing for peace. The League of Nations for solving political controversies, with 54 members, the World Court for settling judicial disputes, with 45 members and the International labor organization for dealing with economic problems with 54 nations have been established and have already rendered notable service. Scores of obligatory arbitration treaties are now in force. Chief of all peace treaties is the Kellogg-Brand Peace Pact, by which 58 nations have renounced war as an instrument of national policy and have pledged themselves to use only methods of peace in seeking settlement of difficulties.

Any nation that now wantonly or carelessly starts a war will come under the certain condemnation of practically the whole world. All now know that every dispute and every claim of right can have public hearing and impartial judgment by neutrals. Under these conditions another world war is extremely improbable.

MILWAUKEE'S FINANCES

Milwaukee is one of the large industrial cities of the country which has a low tax rate and has its finances in good shape. It also does not worry about the crime problem.

For the last two decades the city has curtailed its borrowing to a minimum and instead of issuing bonds for annually recurring expenses it levies a cash tax. Three-fourths of the city departments are operated on a cash basis, and by buying for cash the city saves 10 percent.

Under a scientific budget system, the departments are held within the estimates, which prevents deficits and has resulted in surpluses. An amortization fund will be sufficiently large within 30 years to pay off the entire public debt. The city now has $3,000,000 in this fund.

The residents of Milwaukee are not satisfied with lax and slipshod methods but are vitally interested in a careful and businesslike administration of their public affairs. They apply an aggressive interest in civic affairs to every department of their municipal government, and consequently obtain maximum results.

The policy applies not only to the business administration but also to the police department and the courts. The police department functions as a police department, not as an agency that is responsive to the demands of crooked politicians, racketeers and hoodlums shun Milwaukee, for they know that an honest police department will arrest them and an equally efficient court system will send them to prison.

Other American cities can learn many lessons about municipal administration from Milwaukee where an alert public opinion is responsible for effective city government. — Richmond Palladium.

Going Through "Sifting Process"

By SAMUEL GOLDWYN

Motion Picture Producer
(Samuel Goldwyn was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1882. He immigrated to the United States in 1896, and became a naturalized citizen in 1902. Goldwyn organized the Jesse Lasky Feature Photoplay company in 1913, and in 1916 organized the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. He also organized the Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., as well as many other movie companies. He was a pioneer in inducing authors of America to work actively in promotion of motion pictures, and introduced Vilma Banky, Mary Garden, Geraldine Farrar and Pauline Frederick to the screen. Some of the most artistic pictures of the past year have been produced by Goldwyn, who believes in making few pictures, but those thoroughly.)

In every industry in its earlier phases there is a process by which many are drafted and then sifted. The sifting in the newly constituted industry of Hollywood is going on as rapidly as it can without impairing the machine. The present scale of production will not continue.

Several stars now receiving immense incomes will be weeded out of the "high-pressure group," and those with established drawing power will receive a percentage of box office receipts. Writers will also be paid on a royalty basis, as the playwright at present is paid. Fredrick Lonsdale, Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur have already done scenarios under such an arrangement.

Talent which does not draw at the box office is overpaid at any price. Much criticism has been leveled at the reported $30,000 a week which Constance Bennett receives for her work. What Miss Bennett received from Warner Brothers, however, was $300,000 for two productions, which amounted to $30,000 a week only for the period she was actually employed. The fact is, moreover, that the Warners made more on one Constance Bennett picture than on a half dozen others combined.

The difficulty, undoubtedly, has been, that those who misunderstand Hollywood and thus criticize most severely cannot see the trees for the woods.

Hollywood has been ridiculed for paying writers great sums and letting them wander around for months without doing anything. The truth is that writing is a talent, and the industry must have patience with that sort of talent. Writers cannot be forced.

There are in Hollywood two classes of writers, the conscientious workers who are trying to write and create, and the writer-racketeers who are trying to cash in on what they used to do. There are about as many of one class as of the other.

In fact, Hollywood is a beleaguered city set upon by the outside world. With film exportation cut some 50 per cent by the introduction of sound, the industry is struggling courageously to justify itself to mankind.

Hollywood is working night and day, under a tension and pressure and with a relentless consistency that no one can understand who is not there, in the thick of it and a part of it.

The ultimate facts will prove that the readjustments that have to be made will be affected by the builders of the business. They are capable and they are doing it. Some businesses—most businesses, in fact—shut down when they rebuild and reorganize and undergo sweeping changes of product and policy. The motion picture business has not even slackened pace. The public and the industry as a whole can very well be grateful to Hollywood.

Although the success of well-made American pictures is assured throughout the English-speaking world, the loss of other foreign markets has meant that present costs of production cannot be maintained. Added to this has been the difficulty of an economic depression.

That the motion picture producing community has delivered as well as it has with a practically new medium, under world conditions as they are, is certainly a miracle.

There is the greatest hope for the theatres now if those who are building them realize that they cannot build faster than Hollywood can produce—I fitly will not let the machinery of exhibition outrun the capacity of human genius to produce entertainment.

The present scale of production will not continue. It has been said that some of the big studios are equipped to turn out fifty pictures a year. There is no studio that is mentally equipped to turn out more than twenty pictures a year, and perhaps not that many.

MY NEW YORK

NEW YORK. — Straws in the hurricane:

During the annual holiday raids on Broadway's hiccough houses, enforcement officers displayed an unwonted restraint in the matter of drapes, rugs, furniture and the like. Not an axe descended on a Rembrandt behind the bar (where Maxfield Parrish used to reign in pre-speakie, more conservative days). Not a knife was slashed through $10,000 tapestries. Maybe raiders were impressed by splendor of the new night Rendezvous salons, and again, it is possible that prohibition sleuths are more genteel and considerate in these days.

The Oriental custom of bargaining — to the point of haggling—is invading places as upply as Park avenue gown shops. . . Customers read price tags or ask for quotations and then begin to talk about what they are willing to pay. Shops that would have very nearly thrown you out for attempting to trade sharply three years ago now are willing to discuss the matter. But it's all done with a new camaraderie and good nature.

RAT-TAT-TATTLE

"Buck," the baby elephant Frank Buck brought back from Borneo while filming "Bring 'Em Back Alive," spent the holidays in a large department store toy shop and there developed a terrific yen for escalators. . . He moans to ride up on the moving stairways. A picture concern has him under contract.

Ship news reporters here scout rumor of the Mary Pickford-Doug Fairbanks rift, pointing out that Doug won't give out an interview until Mary is on the scene and depends on her for this and that little thing like any thoroughly domesticated hubby of the old school.

Queens boulevard, on Long Island, will be beautified by a 200-foot strip of artificial grass, concocted of slate and asphalt. The paving concerns which manufacture the stuff swear, that it is lovelier than the real thing. You have to show me!

The coach driver on the N. T. A. Christmas seals is encoined on the LEFT side of the box, which is all wrong. . . But the tally-ho is so long outmoded that William H. Vanderbilt, a confirmed coachman, and an Indiana lady were the only two who pointed out the error. . . That's nothing; many don't recall that all autos used to seat the driver on the right-hand side, as is still done in all left-side-of-the-street European countries.

HIS ANNUAL NEW YEAR'S CARD

—CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—News that Germany will not be able to resume reparations payments (as announced by the Young plan advisory committee at Basel, Switzerland) when the Hoover moratorium expires June 30, will be an early 1932 topic of discussion in both houses of congress.

The tidings are of interest in this country, inasmuch as America's European war debtors will not resume paying what they owe to Uncle Sam, either, until Germany resumes reparations payments.

The advisory committee made this abundantly clear, and the old world press energetically rubbed the idea in immediately afterward. In itself, the advisory committee's report caused no surprise in congressional circles.

Some surprise is expressed, however, at the extraordinary crust of the banker-members of the body in broadcasting their findings within half a dozen hours after the United States senate's vote ratifying the Hoover moratorium.

The withholding of the document until the lawmakers were irrevocably on record is spoken of as very readily understandable; it is agreed that its release while debate still was progressing might conceivably have prevented the debt-suspension plan's approval, despite all the pains taken to insure its indorsement.

What critics of the committee do animadvert upon in hurt tones is the advisory group's contemptuous disregard of American public opinion in issuing its statement so soon after senatorial action—which, it will be recalled, included a congressional declaration directly opposing any further concessions to Uncle Sam's European debtors.

Since further concessions are precisely what the advisory committee insists on, its report is quite interpreted, in fact, as an answer to the question: "What can we do?"

It is problematical just how general the European wartime allies themselves believe in the proposition which many diplomatic conversations have indicated that they would like to have Americans accept.

The theory which they have persistently advanced is that they furnished the men and America the money (money only, until near the conflict's end) to defeat Germany; therefore that the United States should not expect to be repaid.

Uninformed Europeans may swallow this argument whole. Men in important government posts and financiers of much consequence necessarily must be aware that (regardless of America's absolute lack of any original interest in the war) the principle of all actual wartime obligations due to Uncle Sam has been completely cancelled by post-armistice settlements; that Uncle Sam himself is gradually meeting the bonds issued to float these loans; that Europe is paying merely a part of the interest which Uncle Samuel is compelled to pay on them; that the obligations now in such violent controversy are of a purely post-war, commercial character.

German reparations have no more relation to them than to the debts of any Latin American republic in the United States.

No one of Capitol Hill disputes that, in a sense, the United States will be helpless if Europe refuses to pay its debts. There is no hint that an attempt ever will be made to collect them by force.

Nevertheless, in one respect America is at an advantage.

The debtor nations manifestly are bent on escaping repayment, but they are exceedingly reluctant to repudiate their obligations outright and out. They desire the United States to assure them that this country does not consider them morally in debt to the United States treasury at all.

This, of course, the United States does not have to do.

GOOD HOME MADE CANDY TOFFEE

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe)—Two cups light brown sugar, four teaspoons vinegar, one-half cup butter or margarin, one-half cup seedless raisins. Heat sugar, butter or margarin, and vinegar over a very moderate fire, stir until the sugar dissolves, then boil without stirring until the syrup forms a hard ball when tried in cold water. Pour carefully around and over the raisins which have been arranged in rows in greased pans. When cold, cut in squares.

The Stranger.

Afflicted, He Laughed. Watching, I Was Ashamed.

I was tired and my head ached and I felt depressed when that other man came into the restaurant and sat down at a table near mine.

I heard his laugh before I saw the man himself — and even the laugh was like a bugle blowing and a bright banner waving. I thought, "There's a happy fellow."

Three people were with him, but I don't remember them. He was the only one I noticed. . . I kept my eyes on him. I stared and listened.

The laughing stranger was young — and he was deaf! He carried a little box slung over one shoulder. He had little black receivers over his ears and a metal stick over his head. For an instant I was sorry for him — until he laughed again and showed his fine white teeth. Then I was sorry for everybody else. His head was magnificent, his eyes were large and understanding, his mouth was expressive, the expression on his face was humorous, his smile was a masterpiece in tender understanding.

Sometimes, as I looked at him, he seemed to draw away into himself. His eyes drooped, and his face became sad and wistful. He had that look that the withdrawn deaf so often have — as if they were alone and talking only to themselves.

And then one of the others would speak to him and his eyes would light up and he'd say something and they'd all laugh and his own laugh would ring out more gayly than all the others.

I heard nothing that any of them said. I did not need to hear, it was enough that I could see this laughing stranger whose affliction was less to him than to those who looked at him.

My own dinner was finished long before his and I had no excuse for staying longer.

I got up and went out, but as I did so I felt as if I ought to go over and thank that stranger for what he'd done. Of course I didn't do it. One doesn't do such things.

The other fellow might not understand and, besides, you do not thank laughing strangers for being what they are — any more than you thank the falling rain or the bearing trees or the blossoming vines or the warm and strengthening sun for what they do to you.

But, just the same, you can be grateful!

Tribes Used Modern Aids

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Primitive tribes in some parts of the world long since anticipated the modern hygiene of infancy.

There are three Kashmiri cures for "trouble in the bones," according to Vaughn: "(1) A special clay called Baramulla earth, rich in calcium phosphate; (2) pills made of fish liver, and (3) rubbing with mustard oil and exposure to sunlight."

It is curious how closely this primitive tribe of people has come to the conclusions of the most modern scientific research on the prevention of such a disease of the bones as rickets. The Baramulla earth containing calcium furnished them extra material for the building of new bony tissue. The fish liver pills are comparable to the cod liver oil all our babies take as a regular part of their diet for the building of bone. And the sunlight is the regular method of preventing rickets which has become so popular during the last few years.

The mustard oil may even contain ergosterol, and when irradiated with the sun's rays becomes that extremely modern product—irradiated ergosterol or viosterol.

This should remind parents that sunlight is essential to healthy growth and development in very young children. In the winter there is always danger that there will not be a sufficient exposure to sunlight. It should be remembered that skyshine, as it is called, the light coming from a "cloudy sky, has some value—calculated at about one-fourth the value of sunlight. It is better to be outdoors even for a little while even on a cloudy day than to be indoors.

Unless special arrangements are made, sunlight does not reach us indoors, because the active rays of the sun do not pass through our ordinary window glass; special window glass, however, which does not cut out the ultra-violet rays can be obtained.

Sunlight produces chemical changes in our bodies. Its value consists in producing substances which contain Vitamin D. It may possibly produce other vitamins, according to recent research, but we are fairly certain it produces Vitamin D. This substance can be introduced into the body, however, even if exposure to sunlight is impossible. It can be obtained in cod liver oil, and in the relatively new product, viosterol. It is notable that people living in northern lands, where there is a long, dark winter, eat a great deal of caviare and other forms of fish oils.

This treatment is especially directed against the development of rickets. Rickets is a disease of infancy and childhood. It is particularly the children under three who need sunshine or cod liver oil or both. Rickets always shows an increase in the spring—at the end of the dark winter days, when the accumulated effect of lack of sunshine makes itself known.

Rickets can be prevented, let me emphasize in conclusion, and should be prevented during the winter months. See that your baby has as much exposure to sunlight as possible; see that it has cod liver oil or viosterol daily to the diet.

How To Get Her Man?

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Miss Lee, I've known a young man for the past four or five years. We are very good friends. Lately he has obtained a good position and soon will be in a position to marry."

"I love this young fellow and I'd like him for a husband, and if he should marry someone else I think I'd go crazy. He thinks a lot of me, takes me out when he comes to town, but I don't think he knows how much I love him."

"We have been corresponding for some time and his letters are quite affectionate. It seems to me that if I should show him—I mean give him an idea—that I care, I could have him for a lover."

"I suppose you will tell me not to show this man that I love him, but I know that some fellows need a little encouragement. I know some girls who are married today, and if they hadn't tried hard to get their husbands, they would be single. I think that one can show that she loves a fellow and still not be too forward about it. I'm always afraid this young man will meet someone and that I'll be left, so I'd like to get him for myself before it's too late."

"Could you give me an idea of what I can say to him, and not appear too anxious? There must be some way of letting a fellow know that you care for him and still be respectable."

That's an interesting question, Judie. But so much depends on the type of chap this boy friend of yours happens to be.

I, too, know many girls who would never have "gotten their men" unless they had gone after them, just as you say. The catch is that if a girl appears too eager with some men they lose the men, I've heard men talk about their "narrow escapes" and how certain girls tried to "hook" them, too.

It's a delicate situation requiring diplomacy. If a man wants to be caught the sailing is pretty plain and easy. A proprietary and affectionate attitude on the part of the girl does the trick. As his letters are affectionate, answer them in kind, growing a little warmer each time. Watch his reaction. He may be hoping for this and needing just such encouragement to "pop" the question or to drift into that attitude of taking it for granted that you will eventually marry, which is common with young people who are fond of one another and congenial.

Dismiss from your mind any idea that this encouragement is not "descent." Your love for him and his evident affection for you give you the right to try to win him for life if you can. Good luck. Let me know when the wedding date is set.

Women Neglect Arms

By GLADYS GLAD

A lovely star of film fame says that while for years women have concerned themselves with exercises for supple waistlines, hips and legs, they have always been neglectful of their arms. They do not seem to realize that arms require attention just as well as hips, waists and legs.

And when, through improper habits of living, they begin to acquire excess weight, nine out of ten of them find that a great deal of the unwelcome adipose tissue stores itself on their upper arms, from the elbows to the shoulders.

The appearance of that arm sector is mighty important just now, heavens knows, tricky sleeves and revealing evening gowns being what they are. And flabby, fleshy upper arms are certainly unattractive appendages for any female to flaunt before the public eye.

Arms should be firm, slender, well-formed—or else they should be kept out of sight. And what woman, I ask you, wants to force her arms to serve a life sentence in a pair of wrist-length sleeves?

Exercise is the best remedy for that unattractive flabbiness and fatness of the upper arms. And the following movements are sure-fire, if they are practiced vigorously and faithfully every day:

Stand erect, legs together, arms extended sideways at shoulder level. Swing the arm across the body, right arm above, and then back as far as they will freely go. Repeat this entire movement with the left arm above.

Stand erect, legs together. Extend the arms sideways at shoulder level, and swing them around with a circular motion, describing as large an arc as possible.

Stand erect, legs together, arms at sides. Swing the arms up and down rapidly and forcefully, alternating right and left.

If you feel that you have need of something further to assist in trimming down your fleshy arm sector, you can use that alcohol and camphor lotion to good advantage. Dissolve two squares of gummed camphor in eight ounces of alcohol, and simply pat the solution on the upper arms several times a day. As it may tend to have a drying effect, after its use, I would suggest that you apply a bit of cold cream to keep the skin soft, smooth and supple.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

Xenia Central High's basketball team and Tulane University's football team ought to get together sometime and cry on each others' collective shoulder.

The Buccaneers outplayed Columbus West Friday night, yet lost, 21 to 19. Tulane's hitherto undefeated Green Wave confounded the experts by outtrusting and generally outplaying the powerful Southern California team yet lost, 21 to 13.

They pay off in points in sport and moral victories do not count much.

The tremendous advantage of an over-size center to a basketball team was again demonstrated in the Xenia-West contest. "Mo" Hyman did a pretty good job of guarding Marshall, six-foot, seven-inch player, in the first half, holding him to three points, but it was perhaps inevitable the huge youth should go on a scoring rampage in the last half, particularly the third period, and roll up ten more points. To neutralize the situation they ought to have equipped "Mo" with some stilts.

Anybody who thinks basketball is not one of the most strenuous of modern sports should try it. This is the advice of Howard G. Cann, New York U. basketball coach, who declares "a man must be in first class condition and mentally alert to make a good player."

"Although there is a limited amount of body contact in the game, there still is enough speed and action to appease the appetites of the most blood thirsty fans. Basically, basketball is a game of speed and skill, and unwarranted roughness is uncalled for. Hockey outshines the court game, in public opinion, because of its roughness, but basketball offers as much speed and action every second as the ice game."

"To play the game a man must be in excellent physical condition. As an example of how well a player must shape up, take the case of the Columbia University team. Three months before the season opens, each and every player goes out on the road every day for a three-mile run to develop his wind. And, the usual daily workout on the floor follows."

Local sportsmen may be interested to know, unless they know it already, that hunters in the Maine woods bemoan the lack of black bear. Report cards sent in from the woods by sportsmen and guides state the bear shooting season has been the worst in their memory. The lack of sufficient snow so far has made it next to impossible to track and kill Bruin.

BRIDGE BATTLE IS IN FINAL SESSION

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The "battle of the century" in the contract bridge world swung into its fourth and last week today.

Ely Culbertson and Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, his wife, will resume play against Sidney Lenz and Commander Winfield Largent Jr. tonight. Only thirty rubbers remained to be played in the 150-rubber tournament designated to test the approach-forcing as against the "official" system.

The Culbertsons have a lead of 20,220 points.

It was expected the contest will end Friday.

GRAND JURY MEETS

Faced by a fairly heavy criminal docket, the January grand jury was convened in Common Pleas Court Monday morning. Evidence in various cases on which indictments are expected to be based was presented to the investigating tribunal by Prosecutor Marcus McCallister.

Did Me So Much Good!

Said Wilmington Man.

My general health has been bad for sometime and I was generally run down and constipated. My kidneys did not act properly and I was forced to get up several times during the night. I also suffered from neuritis.

TONG-EE was recommended to me and I decided to give it a trial and it certainly did me a lot of good. The neuritis has left me and my bowels are regular, I sleep well and my appetite is good. I intend to keep on taking TONG-EE until I have taken at least six bottles and I gladly recommend it to all who suffer as I did, for it did me so much good.

So said Mr. Jacob Bisher of Wilmington, Ohio. Mr. Bisher is well known in Wilmington and is only too glad to let others know about this wonderful remedy.

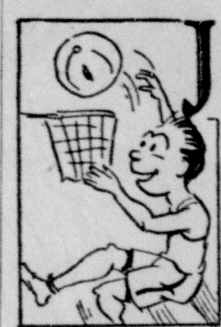

TONG-EE has helped hundreds of people who were unable to find any remedy to do away with their suffering. It will help you as it has them. TONG-EE is not intended to give mere temporary relief. It is not that kind of a medicine.

TONG-EE goes to the very source of ill-health by working, in a natural way, on the important functional organs (the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels). Hundreds of men and women, everywhere TONG-EE has been introduced have said: "This is the medicine I should have had in the first place." Get the facts about TONG-EE today. It is sold and recommended by Donges, The Pharmacist. Adv.

Buccaneers Outscore Opponents In Last Half; Ineffectiveness At Free Throw Line Costly To Xenia Tossers

By PHIL FRAME

UDGING from events over the week-end, Xenia Central's basketball quintet has nearly perfected itself in the technique of losing games by two-point margins.

Duplicating their feat of the preceding evening, when they dropped a heart-breaker to Columbus West by a score of 21 to 19, the unlucky Buccaneers emerged runnerup to Cincinnati Withrow, 18 to 16, after another fast and furiously fought fray fraught with thrills at Central gym Saturday night.

Withrow led throughout but the Tigers experienced the utmost difficulty in withstanding a gallant second half comeback on the part of Central cagers.

It may have been the Bucs were too hospitable. Showing a courtesy that may have been a trifle misplaced, Xenia permitted its guests to roll up a 6 to 3 lead in the first period and a 13 to 6 advantage at halftime.

During the intermission, the realization of this gesture of generosity was not getting them anywhere, apparently dawning on the Bucs. But the great awakening came too late. Xenia outscored the Cincinnati team, ten to five, in the last two periods, but was unable to marshal sufficient points to wipe out the first half deficit.

Attempting to liquidate the initial half seven-point disadvantage on the installment plan, the Buccaneers reduced it by three points in the third quarter, the period ending with the Tigers still out in front, 18 to 14. The final quarter was a wild one. Withrow was held pointless while Xenia collected a grand total of two points on a basket by Mr. James Ralls.

Mr. Pressler, Withrow forward, was high scorer of the contest with 15 points, followed by Mr. Kreimer with six. Mr. Howard Thompson blossomed forth as the leading scorer for the Bucs with seven.

ROSS HIGH DEFEATS LYNCHBURG FIVE IN CONTEST SATURDAY

County Champs Gain Easy Victory On Saturday Night

Resuming its court campaign after a brief intermission during the holidays, Ross Twp. High School's county champion basketball quintet romped to an easy 39 to 11 victory over Lynchburg High on the Highland County school's floor Saturday night. Jerome Pistick, forward, scored twenty points for Ross cagers. In a preliminary contest, the Ross alumni team beat Lynchburg High alumni 42 to 24. Lineups:

OSBORN PLANT WINS REWARD FOR SAFETY

The Southwestern Portland Cement Co., Osborn, is to be presented a trophy soon as the result of establishing a new safety record which entitled it to national honors. The employees have completed a record of safely working a total of 455 consecutive days.

The plant will be awarded the Portland Cement Association safety trophy which is a cast stone monument designed at the Art Institute of Chicago. It stands over eight feet high, is made of cement and white granite and upon its face are sculptured two life size figures representing Safety following Wisdom. The monument will be appropriately inscribed and erected on the plant grounds.

BANK CALL ISSUED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The U. S. Comptroller of the Currency today issued a call for the condition of all national banks at the close of business on Dec. 31.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—The first bank call of 1932 was issued today by State Superintendent Ira J. Fulton for a report of conditions as of the close of business December 31, 1931. The report must be made within ten days.

Funeral services for Mrs. Jennie Maxwell will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the residence, 528 E. Market St.

Members and friends of the P. T. A. of East High School are invited to help sew in the sewing room of Lincoln School Tuesday from 1 to 4 p. m.

J. C. MATTHIEU OF DAYTON POWER AND LIGHT DIES SUNDAY

In ill health for the last seven months, J. Clarence Matthieu, 47, vice-president and a director of The Dayton Power and Light Co., who was widely known in this city, died at 8 o'clock Sunday night at his home, 269 Volusia Ave., Dayton.

Mr. Matthieu, who had taken a prominent part in lengthy negotiations with City commissioners which culminated in his company being awarded a new electric light and power franchise in Xenia last summer, had been associated with the Dayton Power and Light Co. for twenty-two years. Prior to being elected vice-president three years ago, he had served as commercial manager, and before that as power engineer for the firm. His pronounced ability in engineering lines gained him prominence in the public utility field throughout the mid-west.

During the last six months his illness had confined him to his home and prevented him from taking an active part in the work for the company.

Mr. Matthieu is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ethel E. Matthieu; two daughters, Mary Christine and Katherine Matthieu, both prominent in Dayton social activities; his mother, Mrs. J. M. Matthieu, Kansas City; and two sisters, Mrs. R. L. Chamberlain, also of Kansas City, and Mrs. L. B. Morton, Farmington, Me.

Funeral services are expected to be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday at the residence, after which the body will be sent to Farmington, Me., his former home, where burial will be made Thursday afternoon. Friends may call at the residence Monday afternoon or night.

SERIES OF CHURCH MEETINGS OPENED BY PASTOR SUNDAY

Dr. B. L. George, Wilmington, district superintendent of the Hillsboro district of the M. E. Church, spoke on "The Church of Which Jesus Was Pastor" at services opening a two weeks' series of meetings at Trinity M. E. Church Sunday evening.

Dr. George's sermon was to prepare the people of Xenia for a revival of religion and he said, "The members of the church of which Jesus was pastor were human beings, just like you and me." He described the hindrances that this early church encountered but showed how that church thrived in spite of these: "The secret of this church of which Jesus was pastor was that the members had a willing mind, it was a praying church, and they were spirit baptized. So must we be as Christians today if we have a revival. Unless we baptize with the Holy Spirit there will be no revival in Xenia."

A large and appreciative audience attended the first of the series of meetings and the pastor, the Rev. E. A. Rager, led the singing. Special music was presented by the choir and Mrs. W. H. McGervey and the Rev. Mr. Rager sang a duet.

The services will continue for the next two weeks and will be held every evening at 7:30 o'clock except on Saturday. Special music will be presented every evening and the Sunday School Orchestra will play Monday evening. Dr. C. A. Hutchison, pastor of the M. E. Church, Cedarville, will speak Monday evening.

EITHER REVIVAL OR RIOT FACES FUTURE REV. STEWART SAYS

"America is headed for either a revival or a riot," the Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, Atlanta, Ga., told an audience Sunday evening at the First Baptist Church when he spoke on "The Church of God and the Nation."

He quoted from public addresses and warnings given by outstanding statesmen among them H. G. Wells, Major Gen. Smedley D. Butler, and Pope Pius XI and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"Pay your money and take your choice of the cause from these noble men," continued the Rev. Stewart, "but I have found that the cause of men's adversity is alienation from God. The cure of man's adversity is reconciliation to God!" In concluding his message the Rev. Mr. Stewart said, "You are doing more to bring back good times by attending the various revival meetings in Xenia, seeking the salvation of the lost, praying when their country is in peril, setting up a family altar in the home and lifting the spiritual condition in this community than anything else. Which shall it be—revival or riot?"

Monday evening the Rev. Mr. Stewart will speak on "Millions Now Living Are Already Dead."

AUTOISTS UNHURT WHEN CARS COLLIDE

Carl L. Pepple, S. Monroe St., his wife and infant child were shaken severely but escaped serious injury when their coupe overturned after a collision with another auto on the Wilmington Pike, about three miles from Xenia, Saturday night.

The Xenians were driving toward Wilmington when, according to information obtained by Sheriff John Baughn, a coach driven by Mrs. Frank Williams, residing in that vicinity, traveling from a side road, collided with the Pepple car, upsetting it.

BOXER INSULTED

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 4.—The story of the minor league baseball manager who traded one of his players for a bird dog was paralleled today by the Chino Alvarez case here. Alvarez, a heavyweight fighter, was traded to an automobile dealer by his manager, Mickey Kilchner, for a second-hand car.

Kansas City today when an automobile tire-repair shop proprietor reported that three men, one of them resembling Harry Young and another answering the description of a supposed accomplice, appeared at his place last night and asked that their automobile be stored there.

The tire-shop owner R. S. Champ, said he told the men he had no accommodations for storing and they then drove away in a mud-caked car resembling the one they are thought to have stolen when they made their escape from their farmhouse fortress.

Champ said the man resembling Harry Young wore a blood-stained bandage around his head, indicating he had been wounded in Saturday night's battle.

Another report came from Jesse Moore, owner of a farm three miles from here, who told officers that two men, resembling the Young brothers, stole his automobile and sped away in the direction of Joplin.

Airplanes and radio were marshaled to aid in the huge search. All day yesterday an airplane equipped with tear gas bombs and rifles, soared over the brush and wooded country, trying in vain to spot the slayers. Radio stations broadcast tips and clues and descriptions, asking citizens to be on the lookout for any sign of the killers.

Heavily armed posses guarded all highways in the vicinity. More than 5,000 automobiles, filled with official and volunteer possmen, cruised the roads. It was even possible that in this maze of motor traffic the Young brothers might have driven to some distant point of safety.

As the hunt progressed, authorities here were continuing their questioning of the fugitives' mother, two sisters and another brother, Oscar Young, who were in custody. The mother, Mrs. W. H. Young, 65, whose farmhouse was the scene of the battle, heaped reprimands upon her sons and expressed the hope they would kill themselves.

The sisters, Mrs. Lorena Conley, 26, of Houston, Tex., and Vinea Young, 22, of Springfield, stubbornly refused to answer questions and defied the authorities with the challenge: "You'll never get 'em alive." Arrested on charges of automobile theft, the sisters were the ones who inadvertently gave police the tip that Harry Young, sought for two years for the murder of City Marshal Mark Noe of Republic, Mo., was in hiding in his mother's farmhouse.

Besides Sheriff Hendrix, the officers who were slain in the siege of the barricaded farmhouse were Deputy Wiley Marchburn, chief of Detectives Tony Oliver and Detectives Ollie Crosswhite, Charles Houser and Sidney Meadows. Only two of the party of eight officers survived the slaughter. They are Detectives Virgil Johnson and Frank Pike, who were wounded.

Springfield police disclosed that the 65-year-old mother of the Young brothers may have indirectly caused the massacre. They said it had been learned that the elderly woman, upon hearing of the arrest of her two daughters, telephoned her farmhouse from Springfield and warned her sons to be prepared for the advent of the officers.

THREE OHIO TEAMS NURSING BRUISES

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Today not only brought a resumption of basketball activities throughout the state of Ohio but it also was occasion for five colleges to repeat Saturday night losses and make attempts to correct faults which caused defeat.

Ashland College received the most decisive drubbing of the night when it fell before Ohio Wesleyan on its home court, 48 to 21. Vanderbilt scored a 28 to 22 victory over Denison College suffered a 30 to 27 setback before the Sterling Oilers at Newark.

The University of Toledo Rockets staged off a second half rally by Ohio University to win 15 to 13. In the official inauguration of the Buckeye Athletic Conference the University of Cincinnati was nosed out 25 to 23 by DePauw at Greencastle, Ind.

DR. BEST IS NAMED RAILWAY SURGEON

Dr. Marshall Best, W. Main St., who has been acting physician and surgeon for the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads in the Xenia district following the death of Dr. W. A. Galloway several months ago, has received his official appointment to the position. The late Dr. Galloway served as railway surgeon for a number of years for both companies.

Elsie Janis, former stage and screen star, is approaching marriage. She has admitted that she has just about decided to step to the altar with Gilbert Wilson, youthful motion picture actor who is now in Hollywood, Miss Janis, at her home in Tarrytown, N. Y., described Gilbert as "a wonderful guy."

AMERICAN DIPLOMAT BEATEN BY JAPANESE SENTRY AT MUKDEN

being questioned by the Japanese military commander at Koupingtze where he had gone in the capacity of official observer.

TOKYO, Jan. 4.—Beyond an unofficial intimation that the incident probably will be regarded as "unimportant," the Japanese government remained silent today concerning the attack upon Culver B. Chamberlain, American consular official, by Japanese soldiers at Mukden.

A foreign office official told International News Service that no comment could be made pending receipt of a formal report of the incident.

MUKDEN, Jan. 4.—While Culver B. Chamberlain, veteran of the American consular service in China, was enroute to Harbin today suffering from painful gashes in the face inflicted in an "unprovoked assault" by three Japanese soldiers, the American consulate here awaited a formal explanation by Japanese authorities.

Chamberlain was attacked in the streets of Mukden by three sentries who continuously patrol the streets, although no martial law was proclaimed. Enroute to the railroad station in an American Consulate-General car, with proper insignia amply displayed, including the American flag, Chamberlain was stopped by the Japanese troops.

The American does not speak Japanese, and he attempted to reply to questions in the Chinese language, of which he is a master. The Japanese answered with blows.

American Consul-General Myrl W. Myers immediately lodged a verbal protest with the Japanese consulate.

Chamberlain, whose home is in Kansas City Mo., has been named American consul at Harbin, and was on his way there to assume his new duties, after a leave spent recently in the United States. He has been active in consular work in China for ten years, and is an authority on Far-Eastern affairs.

The headquarters of Lieutenant General Shigeru Honjo, commander of Japanese forces in Manchuria, said today the attack upon Chamberlain was being investigated, but pointed out it would be a difficult task to locate those responsible for the incident.

There was an inclination on the part of Japanese spokesmen to infer unofficially that the sentries who attacked Chamberlain may have been Chinese. The only basis for this belief, however, was the report of Chamberlain himself in Chinese when he attempted to identify himself.

Up to 10 o'clock tonight, Consul General Myers had received no reply to his protests.

SORE THROAT

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel easier. Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The leading industrial stocks and specialties were forced downward at the outset today by another outpouring of selling similar to that which upset Saturday's market.

While losses in the favorites were not severe, a new set of "lows" was established by the active shares, including United States Steel at 35 1/2; Westinghouse and General Motors at 19 7/8; American Can at 56 1/4; American Telephone at 110 1/4; DuPont at 43 1/2. These prices are lower than anything quoted in the bear market of 1931, and the assumption is that the liquidation which started in late November had not been completed at the year-end.

Xenia Central High's basketball team and Tulane University's football team ought to get together sometime and cry on each other's collective shoulder.

The Buccaneers outplayed Columbus West Friday night, yet lost, 21 to 19. Tulane's hitherto undefeated Green Wave confounded the experts by outscoring and generally outplaying the powerful Southern California team, yet lost, 21 to 12.

They pay off in points in sport and moral victories do not count much.

The tremendous advantage of an oversize center to a basketball team was again demonstrated in the Xenia-West contest. "Mo" Hyman did a pretty good job of guarding Marshall, six-foot, seven-inch player, in the first half, holding him to three points, but it was inevitable that the huge youth should go on a scoring rampage in the last half, particularly the third period, and roll up ten more points. To neutralize the situation they ought to have equipped "Mo" with some stilts.

Anybody who thinks basketball is not one of the most strenuous of modern sports should try it. This is the advice of Howard G. Cann, New York U. basketball coach, who declares "a man must be in first class condition and mentally alert to make a good player."

"Although there is a limited amount of body contact in the game, there still is enough speed and action to appease the appetites of the most blood thirsty fans. Basically, basketball is a game of speed and skill, and unwarranted roughness is uncalled for. Hockey outshines the court game, in public opinion, because of its roughness, but basketball offers as much speed and action every second as the ice game.

"To play the game a man must be in excellent physical condition. As an example of how well a player must shape up, take the case of the Columbia University team. Three months before the season opens, each and every player goes out on the road every day for a three-mile run to develop his wind. And, the usual daily workout on the floor follows."

Local sportsmen may be interested to know, unless they know it already, that hunters in the Maine woods bemoan the lack of black bear. Report cards sent in from the woods by sportsmen and guides state the bear shooting season has been the worst in their memory. The lack of sufficient snow so far has made it next to impossible to track and kill Bruin.

BRIDGE BATTLE IS IN FINAL SESSION

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The "battle of the century" in the contract bridge world swung into its fourth and last week today.

Ely Culbertson and Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, his wife will resume play against Sidney Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett Jr. tonight. Only thirty rubbers remain to be played in the 150-rubber tournament designated to test the approach for as against the "official" system.

The Culbertsons have a lead of 20,220 points.

It was expected the contest will end Friday.

GRAND JURY MEETS

Faced by a fairly heavy criminal docket, the January grand jury was convened in Common Pleas Court Monday morning. Evidence in various cases on which indictments are expected to be based was presented to the investigating tribunal by Prosecutor Marcus McCallister.

Did Me So Much Good!

Said Wilmington Man.

My general health has been bad for some time and I was generally run down and constipated. My kidneys did not act properly and I was forced to get up several times during the night. I also suffered from neuritis.

TON-GE was recommended to me and I decided to give it a trial and it certainly did me a lot of good. The neuritis has left me and my bowels are regular, I sleep well and my appetite is good. I intend to keep on taking TON-GE until I have taken at least six bottles and I gladly recommend it to all who suffer as I did, for it did me so much good.

So said Mr. Jacob Bisher of Wilmington, Ohio. Mr. Bisher is well known in Wilmington and is only too glad to let others know about this wonderful remedy.

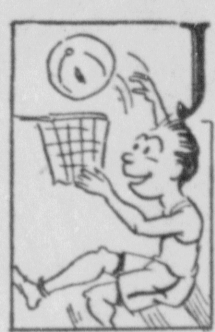

TON-GE has helped hundreds of people who were unable to find any remedy to do away with their suffering. It will help you as it has helped me. TON-GE is not intended to give mere temporary relief. It is not that kind of a medicine.

TON-GE goes to the very source of ill-health by working, in a natural way, on the important functional organs (the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels). Hundreds of men and women, everywhere TON-GE has been introduced have said: "This is the medicine I get have had in the first place." Get the facts about TON-GE today. It is sold and recommended by Douglas, The Pharmacist. Adv.

Cincinnati Withrow Upsets Central 18-16

Buccaneers Outscore Opponents In Last Half; Ineffectiveness At Free Throw Line Costly To Xenia Tossers

By PHIL FRAME

UDGING from events over the week-end, Xenia Central's basketball quintet has nearly perfected itself in the technique of losing games by two-point margins.

Duplicating their feat of the preceding evening, when they dropped a heart-breaker to Columbus West by a score of 21 to 19, the unlucky Buccaneers emerged runner-up to Cincinnati Withrow, 18 to 16, after another fast and furiously fought fray fraught with thrills at Central gym Saturday night.

Withrow led throughout but the Tigers experienced the utmost difficulty in withstanding a gallant second half comeback on the part of Central cagers.

It may have been the Bucs who were the hospitable. Showing a courtesy that may have been a trifle misapplied, Xenia permitted its guests to roll up a 6 to 3 lead in the first period and a 13 to 6 advantage at halftime.

During the intermission, the realization this gesture of generosity was not getting them anywhere, apparently dawned on the Bucs. But the great awakening came too late. Xenia outscored the Cincinnati team, ten to five, in the last two periods, but was unable to marshal sufficient points to wipe out the first half deficit.

Attempting to liquidate the initial half seven-point disadvantage on the installment plan, the Buccaneers reduced it by three points in the third quarter, the period ending with the Tigers still out in front, 18 to 14. The final quarter was a wild one. Withrow was held pointless while Xenia collected a grand total of two points on a basket by Mr. James Ralls.

Mr. Pressler, Withrow forward, was high scorer of the contest with ten points, followed by Mr. Kreimer with six. Mr. Howard Thompson blossomed forth as the leading scorer for the Bucs with seven.

J. C. MATTHIEU OF DAYTON POWER AND LIGHT DIES SUNDAY

In ill health for the last seven months, J. Clarence Matthieu, 47, vice-president and a director of The Dayton Power and Light Co., who was widely known in this city, died at 8 o'clock Sunday night at his home, 269 Volusia Ave., Dayton.

Mr. Matthieu, who had taken a prominent part in lengthy negotiations with City Commission which culminated in his company being awarded a new electric light and power franchise in Xenia last summer, had been associated with the Dayton Power and Light Co. for twenty-two years. Prior to being elected vice-president three years ago, he had served as commercial manager, and before that as power engineer for the firm. His pronounced ability in engineering lines gained him prominence in the public utility field throughout the mid-west.

During the last six months his illness had confined him to his home and prevented him from taking an active part in the work for the company.

Mr. Matthieu is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ethel E. Matthieu; two daughters, Mary Christine and Katharine Matthieu; both residing in Dayton; social activities; his mother, Mrs. J. M. Matthieu, Kansas City; and two sisters, Mrs. R. L. Chamberlain, also of Kansas City, and Mrs. L. B. Morton, Farmington, Me.

Funeral services are expected to be held at 10 a. m. Tuesday at the residence, after which the body will be sent to Farmington, Me., his former home, where burial will be made Thursday afternoon. Friends may call at the residence Monday afternoon or night.

SERIES OF CHURCH
MEETINGS OPENED
BY PASTOR SUNDAY

Dr. B. L. George, Wilmington, district superintendent of the Hillsboro district of the M. E. Church, spoke on "The Church of Which Jesus Was Pastor" at services opening a two weeks' series of meetings at Trinity M. E. Church Sunday evening.

Dr. George's sermon was to prepare the people of Xenia for a revival of religion and he said, "The members of the church of which Jesus was pastor were human beings, just like you and me." He described the hindrances that this early church encountered, but showed how that church thrived in spite of these: "The secret of this church of which Jesus was pastor was that the members had a willing mind, it was a praying church, and they were spirit baptized. So must we be as Christians today if we have a revival. Unless we baptize with the Holy Spirit there will be no revival in Xenia."

A large and appreciative audience attended the first of the series of meetings and the pastor, the Rev. E. A. Rager, led the singing. Sacred music was presented by the choir and Mrs. W. H. McGarvey and the Rev. Mr. Rager sang a duet.

The services will continue for the next two weeks and will be held every evening at 7:30 o'clock except on Saturday. Special music will be presented every evening and the Sunday School Orchestra will play Monday evening. Dr. C. A. Hutchison, pastor of the M. E. Church, Cedarville, will speak Monday evening.

EITHER REVIVAL OR
RIOT FACES FUTURE
REV. STEWART SAYS

"America is headed for either a revival or a riot," the Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, Atlanta, Ga., told an audience Sunday evening at the First Baptist Church when he spoke on "The Cause and Cure of Depression." He quoted from public addresses and warnings given by outstanding statesmen among them H. G. Wells, Major Gen. Smedley D. Butler, and Pope Pius XI and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

"Pay your money and take your choice of the cause from these noble men," continued the Rev. Mr. Stewart, "but I have found that the cause of men's adversity is alienation from God. The cure of man's adversity is reconciliation to God!" In concluding his message the Rev. Mr. Stewart said, "You are doing more to bring back good times by attending the various revival meetings in Xenia, seeking the salvation of the lost, praying when their coupe overturned after a collision with another auto on the Wilmington Pike, about three miles from Xenia, Saturday night."

The Xenians were driving toward Wilmington when, according to information obtained by Sheriff John Baughn, a coach driven by Mrs. Frank Williams, residing in that vicinity, traveling from a side road, collided with the Pepple car, upsetting it.

Monday evening the Rev. Mr. Stewart will speak on "Millions Now Living Are Already Dead."

AUTOISTS UNHURT
WHEN CARS COLLIDE

Carl L. Pepple, S. Monroe St., his wife and infant child were shaken severely but escaped serious injury when their coupe overturned after a collision with another auto on the Wilmington Pike, about three miles from Xenia, Saturday night.

The Xenians were driving toward Wilmington when, according to information obtained by Sheriff John Baughn, a coach driven by Mrs. Frank Williams, residing in that vicinity, traveling from a side road, collided with the Pepple car, upsetting it.

BOXER INSULTED

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 4.—The story of the minor league baseball player who traded one of his players for a bird dog was paralleled today by the Chico Alvarez case here. Alvarez, a heavyweight fighter, was traded to an automobile dealer by his manager, Mickey Kilchner, for a second-hand car.

AIRPLANES, RADIO ASSIST SEARCH FOR VICIOUS BROTHERS

Kansas City today when an automobile tire-repair shop proprietor reported that three men, one of them resembling Harry Young and another answering the description of a supposed accomplice, appeared at his place last night and asked that their automobile be stored there.

The tire-shop owner R. S. Champ, said he told the men he had no accommodations for storing and they then drove away in a mud-colored car resembling the one they are thought to have stolen when they made their escape from their farmhouse fortress.

Champ said the man resembling Harry Young wore a blood-stained bandage around his head, indicating he had been wounded in Saturday night's battle.

Another report came from Jesse Moore, owner of a farm three miles from here, who told officers that two men, resembling the Young brothers, stole his automobile and sped away in the direction of Joplin.

Airplanes and radio were marshaled to aid in the huge search. All day yesterday an airplane equipped with tear gas bombs and rifles, soared over the brush and wooded country, trying in vain to spot the players. Radio stations broadcast tips and clues and descriptions, asking citizens to be on the lookout for any sign of the killers.

Heavily armed posses guarded all highways in the vicinity. More than 5,000 automobiles, filled with official and volunteer posemen, cruised the roads. It was even possible that in this maze of motor traffic the Young brothers might have driven to some distant point of safety.

As the pursuit progressed, authorities here were continuing their questioning of the fugitives' mother, two sisters and another brother, Oscar Young, who were in custody. The mother, Mrs. W. H. Young, 65, whose farmhouse was the scene of the battle, heaped reprimands upon her sons and expressed the hope they would kill themselves.

The sisters, Mrs. Lorena Conley, 26, of Houston, Tex., and Violet Young, 22, of Springfield, stubbornly refused to answer questions and defied the authorities with the challenge: "You'll never get 'em alive." Arrested on charges of automobile theft, the sisters were the ones who inadvertently gave police the tip that Harry Young, sought for two years for the murder of City Marshal Mark Noe of Republic, Mo., was in hiding in his mother's farmhouse.

Besides Sheriff Hendrix, the officers who were slain in the siege of the barricaded farmhouse were Deputy Wiley Marshall, chief of Detectives Tony Oliver and Detectives Ollie Crosswhite, Charles Houser and Sidney Meadows. Only two of the party of eight officers survived the slaughter. They are Detectives Virgil Johnson and Frank Pike, who were wounded.

Springfield police disclosed that the 65-year-old mother of the Young brothers may have indirectly caused the massacre. They said it had been learned that the elderly woman, upon hearing of the arrest of her two daughters, telephoned her farmhouse from Springfield and warned her sons to be prepared for the advent of the officers.

THREE OHIO TEAMS
NURSING BRUISES

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Today not only brought the resumption of football activities throughout the state of Ohio but it also was occasion for five colleges to repeat Saturday night losses and make attempts to correct faults which caused defeat.

Ashland College received the most decisive drubbing of the night when it fell before Ohio Wesleyan on its home court, 48 to 21. Vanderbilt scored a 28 to 22 victory over Miami University at Oxford while Denison College suffered a 59 to 27 setback before the Sterling Oilers at Newark.

The University of Toledo Rockets staged off a second half rally by Ohio University to win 15 to 13. In the official inauguration of the Buckeye Athletic Conference the University of Cincinnati was noised out 25 to 23 by DePaul at Green-castle, Ind.

DR. BEST IS NAMED
RAILWAY SURGEON

Dr. Marshall Best, W. Main St., who has been acting physician and surgeon for the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads in the Xenia district following the death of Dr. W. A. Galloway several months ago, has received his official appointment to the position. The late Dr. Galloway served as railway surgeon for a number of years for both companies.

ABOUT DECIDED

Elsie Janis, former stage and screen star, is approaching marriage. She has admitted that she has just about decided to step to the altar with Gilbert Wilson, youthful motion picture actor who is now in Hollywood. Miss Janis, at her home in Tarrytown, N. Y., described Gilbert as "a wonderful guy."

being questioned by the Japanese military commander at Koupangkie where he had gone in the capacity of official observer.

TOKYO, Jan. 4.—Beyond an official intimation that the incident probably will be regarded as "unimportant," the Japanese government remained silent today concerning the attack upon Culver B. Chamberlain, American consular official, by Japanese soldiers at Mukden.

A foreign office official told International News Service that no comment could be made pending receipt of a formal report of the incident.

MUKDEN, Jan. 4.—While Culver B. Chamberlain, veteran of the American consular service in China, was enroute to Harbin today suffering from painful gashes in the face inflicted in an "unprovoked assault" by three Japanese soldiers, the American consulate here awaited a formal explanation by Japanese authorities.

Chamberlain was attacked in the streets of Mukden by three sentries who continuously patted the streets, although no martial law was proclaimed. Enroute to the railroad station in an American consulate-General car, with proper insignia amply displayed, including the American flag, Chamberlain was stopped by the Japanese troops.

The American does not speak Japanese, and he attempted to reply to questions in the Chinese language, of which he is a master. The Japanese answered with blows.

American Consul-General Myr W. Myers immediately lodged a verbal protest with the Japanese consulate.

Chamberlain, whose home is in Kansas City Mo., has been named American consul at Harbin, and was on his way there to assume his new duties, after a leave spent recently in the United States. He has been active in consular work in China for ten years, and is an authority on Far-Eastern affairs.

The headquarters of Lieutenant General Shigeru Honjo, commander of Japanese forces in Manchuria, said today the attack upon Chamberlain was being investigated, but pointed out it would be a difficult task to locate those responsible for the incident.

There was an inclination on the part of Japanese spokesmen to infer unofficially that the sentries who attacked Chamberlain may have been Chinese. The only basis for this belief, however, was the report of Chamberlain himself that the sentries spoke volubly in Chinese when he attempted to identify himself.

Up to 10 o'clock tonight, Consul General Myers had received no reply to his protests.

SORE THROAT

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel soothed. Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—The leading industrial stocks and specialties were forced downward at the outset today by another outpouring of selling similar to that which upset Saturday's market.

While losses in the favorites were not severe, a new set of "Iowa" was established by the active shares, including United States Steel at 35 1/2; Westinghouse and General Motors at 19 7/8; American Can at 56 1/4; American Telephone at 110 1/4; DuPont at 49 1/2. These prices are lower than anything quoted in the bear market of 1931, and the assumption is that the liquidation which started in late November had not been completed at the year-end.

Held 33,000 Broadcasts During 1931 Says Report

By MILDRED MASON

SINCE it is the first of the year, the time for annual reviews, this department is going statistical today. During 1931, 33,000 broadcasts were held involving more than one-quarter million participants in a score of nations, is the summary of the 1931 review of the National Broadcasting Co. Possibly the most outstanding international program which was broadcast by NBC and also over the Columbia network was the address of Pope Pius XI when the powerful Vatican station was opened on February 12. An unusual broadcast over NBC network during the year was an account of the roaring parade of 600 army airplanes over New York and Chicago which was one of the spectacular events of the year.

Ninety-three international broadcasts were carried by the Columbia system during the year. Six hundred programs broadcast over the CBS networks originated in Washington, D. C., totaling 200 air hours and including addresses by President Hoover and more than 200 governmental officials.

Broadcast Davies' Composition. The "Melody," composed by Charles G. Davies, ambassador to the Court of St. James, will be featured on the organ program to be broadcast in the "Beautiful Thoughts" hour over an NBC network Tuesday at 8 p. m. over an NBC network. This program will be heard through station WLW, Cincinnati, Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Present "Daddy Long Legs." "Daddy Long Legs," a story with its setting in an orphan asylum and which has been portrayed both on the stage and screen, will be dramatized in the Children's Story Hour over an NBC network, through station WLW, Cincinnati, Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Begin Governmental Series. The National League of Women Voters, in cooperation with the National Broadcasting Co., will present the first of the fifth annual series of programs dedicated to governmental and political discussions Tuesday at 8 p. m. over an NBC network. Intended to promote interest in problems of government and politics the general subject of the broadcasts will be "1932 and After." Walter Lippmann, liberal author and journalist, and William R. Castle, under-secretary of state will be heard on the first program. Lippmann will discuss international politics and economic relations while Castle will discuss a domestic problem. Stations to broadcast the program are not listed.

"The Shadow" Returns. "The Shadow," whose eerie personality last year struck terror and delight to those who thrill to their radio mysteries full of thrills and chills, will return to the air Tuesday night at 10 o'clock in a new series of half-hour mystery dramas over the Columbia network, through station WKRC, Cincinnati. "The Shadow," true to his name, will hover in the background to set the scene in the same manner as in his previous series. In practically every detail, the new series will follow the lines of the original dramas.

Miss Lombard Gets Part; Murder Film To Soon Start

Murder in a beauty parlor, with curtained booths handy for disposal of the body, is the Macabre thrill promised in "The Flagrant Years" which Paramount will start shooting about February 1 with Carole Lombard and Phillips Holmes in the romantic leads.

The story, by Samuel Hopkins Adams, ran in the Cosmopolitan and Zoe Akins has been commissioned to transfer it into movie script. George Cukor will direct.

Mystery involves the future of the story, "Blood and Wine," which RKO was to make featuring Dolores Del Rio and Ricardo Cortez. It is reported the part is being rewritten for Constance Bennett in which case, what of "Free to Live," which was to be Connie's next?

Bill Boyd has an unusual role in "The Big Gamble," the RKO-Pathé feature that opened at the Orplum Sunday and remains through Monday, which plays Saturday at the Orplum. The picture is made up of a series of magnificent scenes, including a lavish pageant of all the feminine allure money can buy. It is practically a fashion show on the screen, parading creations by the Hollywood modiste, Bess Schrank, June Collyer, Lloyd Hughes, Owen Moore, Dorothy Christy, Nella Walker, Jameson Thomas, Bobby Agnew, Gwen Lee, Addie McPhail and Joan Standing are in the cast.

To celebrate his new RKO contract John Halliday will play the role of John Barrymore's brother in "State's Attorney" which will also mark Helen Twelvetrees' debut on the RKO lot.

OHIO RURAL SCHOOL PROTECTIVE GROUP QUIZZES SKINNER

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Forty questions. No more, no less. Just forty questions have been put to Dr. B. O. Skinner, state director of education by the Ohio Rural School Protective League.

The questions are asked, according to the league, "in the high hope of enlightening Dr. Skinner's sympathy and aid in saving our schools." They are not concocted, it was said, with any desire to embarrass the director of education.

The letter in which the questionnaire is contained warns the director of education "that what would be good politically for county superintendents might not always be good for the schools."

"It will require the utmost vigilance on your part," the letter says, "to avoid the pitfalls which lie before you if you seek to prevent the school system from sinking deeper and deeper into the mire of politics."

Among the questions to which the league seeks answers are the following:

Do you think a county school superintendent should personally select and go out and work for county board candidates?

Should teachers' organizations pay all of their campaign expenses or any part of them?

Should campaign literature be distributed in school rooms?

What chance has any real educator of getting a job as county school superintendent against a clever politician who already holds the job?

Do political demands made upon teachers place them in practical bondage?

What plans if any have you made for finding out the opinions of the citizens in the district before radical changes are endorsed by your office?

Do you approve of the plan to do away with all local school boards and have all schools administered by a county board and superintendent?

How would you eradicate politics from the schools?

Has your office any power to correct any of these evils?

The league hopes to obtain Dr. Skinner's replies to the questions by January 14 when the next annual meeting of the organization is to be held in Columbus.

ALLEGED THIEF IS CAUGHT SOON AFTER CHICKENS STOLEN

The tell-tale license on his automobile brought about the arrest early Sunday morning of Vern Wilson, 45, living on the Wilmington Pike near the Greene-Clinton County line, accused of the theft of twelve chickens Saturday night from the farm of David H. Keiter of the White Chapel neighborhood.

Sheriff John Baughn who, with L. A. Davis, county road patrolman arrested Wilson at his home at 1 a. m. Sunday, revealed that a neighbor, hearing a commotion among the chickens on the Keiter place, saw an auto drive away and obtained the car's license number.

The tag number was turned over to authorities and ownership of the machine was identified at the Auto Club, whereupon the officers visited Wilson's home. The sheriff said he found two of the chickens had been killed and dressed. The remaining ten, identified as those stolen, were discovered in the attic of the house after the officers heard suspicious scratching sounds, Sheriff Baughn reported.

NEW WASHINGTON STAMPS BEING SOLD

Commemorating the bicentennial observance of the birth of George Washington, the new issue of postage stamps of from 1 to 10-cent denomination, all bearing portraits of Washington at different times in his life, sketched by different artists, was placed on sale at the Xenia Post Office Saturday.

The stamps went on sale in Washington, D. C., one day earlier than elsewhere over the country, in honor of the fact the federal city is named for the famous Revolutionary War general and first president.

The new stamps received locally are of denominations of 1, 2, 3, 4, 7, 8 and 10 cents.

The post office has also received a supply of stamped envelopes, commemorating the bicentennial. The envelopes are of three sizes, including 5A, 8 and 13 and bear embossings of Mount Vernon.

JOHN M. GALLAGHER RETIRED BY PENNSY

John M. Gallagher, 65, 243 Worth St., Cincinnati, former Xenian, was placed on the honor roll of the Pennsylvania Railroad Friday after being in the employ of that company for the last fifty years. He entered the service of the company December 25, 1881 at Cincinnati and at the time of his retirement was employed as a switch tender.

Mr. Gallagher was born in Xenia and spent his early life here. He has a number of relatives here. He is a member of the Veterans Association and the Knights of Columbus and St. Rose Church, East End, Cincinnati.

AKRON, O., Jan. 4.—Attired in overalls and a straw hat and perspiring freely, Clarence F. Ames, 72, a retired photographer, mowed his lawn on Christmas Day and collected a $5 wager. He bet a month previous that there would be no snow Christmas and that he would be able to cut green grass in his front yard.

BULLET PIERCES GAS TANK AND ALLEGED LAW VIOLATOR CAUGHT

A bullet that pierced the fugitive car's gasoline tank, allowing the fuel to trickle out, abruptly ended an automobile chase and resulted in the arrest of a suspected liquor law violator early Sunday night.

Hollis L. Thornton, about 25, of 535 E. Church St., under arrest, was said to have led Chief Deputy Sheriff Walton Spahr and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, a merry chase from the Maple Corner neighborhood, down the Winchester Road, and thence along the Wilmington Pike almost to Lumberton before the capture was effected.

When the suspect ignored repeated commands to stop and, by swerving from one side of the road to the other, prevented the county car from drawing alongside, Road

POLICE TO ENFORCE TRAFFIC LAWS

AMONG the things the new year has ushered in is a vigorous campaign to be waged by police against all forms of traffic violations in Xenia.

The first offender to be cited into Municipal Court in the newly-instituted drive was Howard Brown, Cleveland, who was fined the costs, $2.50, for failing to heed the "red" light of the traffic-regulating signal at Second and Detroit Sts., Sunday.

Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith issued an announcement that all traffic law violators brought before him will henceforth be assessed "at least the costs" of the case.

Police have a standing order to enforce court citations in cases of all violations of the traffic ordinance, including illegal parking and a disregard of traffic lights. Hereafter no excuses of motorists will be accepted, the police announcement said.

LAMME FARM SOLD AT PUBLIC AUCTION

Ordered sold at public auction Saturday morning in the partition suit of John W. Lamme and others against Minnie F. Thornhill and others, the Lamme farm of 169 acres, situated two miles north of Bellbrook, was bought by Frank D. Lamme, one of the heirs, for $46 an acre. The purchase price was about $7,774.

The farm is separated into three tracts of real estate, and the tracts were appraised jointly at $68.45 an acre.

WOMAN FINED AFTER PLEADING GUILTY

Changing her plea to guilty to a charge of possessing a still, Mrs. Bertha Stethem, Jamestown, wife of a former Xenia motorcycle policeman, was fined $100 and costs by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Monday morning.

Mrs. Stethem's arrest followed the discovery of a fifteen-gallon capacity still in a raid on her home, conducted by county authorities last Wednesday night. Ownership of the still, however, was admitted by Elmo Hoover, 19, arrested later. Hoover was fined $800 and costs Friday by Judge Smith when he pleaded guilty to possessing apparatus intended for the manufacture of liquor. Mrs. Stethem had pleaded not guilty to a similar charge when arraigned.

Theater with Dr. B. R. McClellan presiding and the Rev. E. A. Rager, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church, leading the singing. The Rev. Ralph E. Stewart, Atlanta, Ga., gave a fifteen minute evangelistic message taking his text from Matthew, "Whom do ye say that I am?"

Meetings will be held every noon this week from 12 to 12:30 o'clock and are open to both men and women. The Rev. Peter Quartel, for the past eighteen years superintendent of the Dayton City Mission, will speak Tuesday noon and Herman W. Eavey will preside. Special music will be furnished by the Revs. Rager, Stewart and Quartel and Mr. Eavey.

OHIO RURAL SCHOOL PROTECTIVE GROUP QUIZZES SKINNER

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 4.—Forty questions, No. more, no less. Just forty questions have been put to Dr. B. O. Skinner, state director of education by the Ohio Rural School Protective League.

The questions are asked, according to the league, "in the hope of enlisting Dr. Skinner's sympathy and aid in saving our schools." They are not concocted, it was said, with any desire to embarrass the director of education.

The letter in which the questionnaire is contained warns the director of education "that what would be good politically for county superintendents might not always be good for the schools."

"It will require the utmost vigilance on your part," the letter says, "to avoid the pitfalls which lie before you if you seek to prevent the school system from sinking deeper and deeper into the mire of politics."

Among the questions to which the league seeks answers are the following:

Do you think a county school superintendent should personally select and go out and work for county board candidates?

Should teacher's organizations pay all of their campaign expenses or any part of them?

Should campaign literature be distributed in school rooms?

What chance has any real educator of getting a job as county school superintendent against a clever politician who already holds the job?

Do political demands made upon teachers place them in practical bondage?

What plans if any have you made for finding out the opinions of the citizens in the district before radical changes are endorsed by your office?

Do you approve of the plan to do away with all local school boards and have all schools administered by a county board and superintendent?

How would you eradicate politics from the schools?

Has your office any power to correct any of these evils?

The league hopes to obtain Dr. Skinner's replies to the questions by January 14 when the next annual meeting of the organization is to be held in Columbus.

ALLEGED THIEF IS CAUGHT SOON AFTER CHICKENS STOLEN

The tell-tale license on his automobile brought about the arrest early Sunday morning of Vern Wilson, 45, living on the Wilmington Pike near the Greene-Clinton County line, accused of the theft of twelve chickens Saturday night from the farm of David H. Kelter of the White Chapel neighborhood.

Sheriff John Baughn who, with L. A. Davis, county road patrolman arrested Wilson at his home at 1 a. m. Sunday, revealed that a neighbor, hearing a commotion among the chickens on the Kelter place, saw an auto drive away and obtained the car's license number.

The tag number was turned over to authorities and ownership of the machine was identified at the Auto Club, whereupon the officers visited Wilson's home. The sheriff said he found two of the chickens had been killed and dressed. The remaining ten, identified as those stolen, were discovered in the attic of the house after the officers heard suspicious scratching sounds. Sheriff Baughn reported.

BULLET PIERCES GAS TANK AND ALLEGED LAW VIOLATOR CAUGHT

A bullet that pierced the fugitive car's gasoline tank, allowing the fuel to trickle out, abruptly ended an automobile chase and resulted in the arrest of a suspected liquor law violator early Sunday night.

Hollis L. Thornton, about 25, of 535 E. Church St., under arrest, was said to have led Chief Deputy Sheriff Walton Spahr and L. A. When the suspect ignored repeated commands to stop and, by swerving from one side of the road to the other, prevented the county car from drawing alongside, Road Patrolman Davis opened fire, attempting to shoot the tires of the escaping touring car. One of the bullets struck the gas tank on the rear of the auto and when all the fuel had leaked out, the chase terminated. While the pursuit of the fugitive was in progress, the officers claim that bottle after bottle of liquor was thrown out of the car onto the highway and broken. Nevertheless, the deputies mopped up a sufficient amount of the fluid from the highway to constitute "evidence," they assert.

Thornton's car was also occupied by three women and four other young men, all of whom were released after being brought back to Xenia and questioned. The charge to be placed against Thornton has not been decided.
